U. S. AGAIN WARNS GERMANY

TORPEDO SINKS LINER CYMRIC

CYMRIC IS U-BOAT VICTIM

Liner, Formerly in Boston Service, Torpedoed in the English Chanel—Fate of Crew Unknown

London, May 9.—The White Star express freighter Cymric, which was torpedoed by a German submarine off the Irish coast on Monday afternoon, sank this morning.

Before news o fthe sinking of the 13,000-ton freighter wa sreceived it had bee nreported that the disabled vessel was o nher way to an Irish port.

In view of the strained relations between Germany and the United States, details of the submarine attack on the Cymric were awaited with keen anxiety in official Washington circles, dispatches from that city stated.

A message to the Exchange Telegram Company in London said the Cymric had been the victim of a German U-boat.

It is officially stated by the British Consul at New York that there were no Americans aboard the liner.

Washington dispatches said Administration officials did not believe a German submarine had violated the pledge made by Germany in its latest note. These officials were inclined to think that, if torpedoed, the Cymric must have broken the law by trying to escape or by resisting the submarine.

New York dispatches state that the Cymric carried an "enormous cargo of war munitions." She left New York April 29 for Liverpool. She carried no passengers and had a crew of 100 or more men.

The White Star Line steamship Cymric was well known in Boston. For years she was operated in the service between Liverpool and Boston and carried thousands of passengers to and from this city. Her last passage from Boston was on June 29, 1914, when she sailed from Hoosac Docks, Charlestown, with a large number of passengers for Liverpool. After that she was placed in the Liverpool-New York service and most of her passenger accommodations were removed to enlarge her cargo space.

The Cymric will be remembered as the vessel that brought into Boston in February, 1908, Captain Lewis and forty survivors of the crew of the British steamer St. Cuthbert, which caught fire and was burned at sea.

Captain Frank R. Beadnell, who has commanded the Cymric for some time, is well-known in this city.

SLAYER ELLIOTT DIES IN JAIL CELL

Broklyn, Ct., May 9.—John Elliott, who shot and killed Miss Sybil Pettis and her father, G. A. Petis of Thompson, died early today in the county jail. Elliott was shot in the head, but could give no account of the wound, and the authorities were unable to learn by whom it was inflicted.

Baltic to Carry Troops.

The White Star liner Baltic will leave New York for Halifax shortly to carry 6,000 Canadian volunteers to England.

Text of New U.S. Warning to Germany

Washington, May 9.—The text of the note cabled by Secretary Lansing to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin with instructions to deliver it to the German Minister for Foreign Affairs, is as follows:

The note of the Imperial German government under date of May 4, 1916, has received careful consideration by the government of the United States.

It is especially noted as indicating the purpose of the imperial government as to the future that it is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operation of the war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents and that it is determined to impose upon all its commanders at sea the limitations of the recognized rules of international law upon which the government of the United States has insisted.

Throughout the months which have elapsed since the imperial government announced on February 4, 1915, its submarine policy, now happily abandoned, the government of the United States has been constantly guided and restrained by motives of friendship in its patient efforts to bring to an amicable settlement the critical questions arising from that policy.

Accepting the imperial government's declaration of its abandonment of the policy which has so seriously menaced the good relations between the two countries, the government of the United States will rely upon a scrupulous execution henceforth of the now altered policy of the imperial government such as will remove the principal danger to an interruption of the relations existing between the United States and Germany.

The government of the United States feels it necessary to state that it takes it for granted that the imperial German government does not intend to imply that the maintenance of its newly announced policy is in any way contingent upon the course or result of diplomatic negotiations between the United States and any other belligerent government, notwithstanding the fact that certain passages in the imperial government's note of the 4th instant might appear to be susceptible of that construction.

In order, however, to avoid any possible misunderstanding, the government of the United States notifies the imperial government that it cannot for a moment entertain, much less discuss, a suggestion that respect by German naval authorities for the rights of citizens of the United States upon the high seas should in any way or in the slightest degree be made contingent upon the conduct of any other government affecting the rights of neutrals and non-combatants.

Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint; absolute, not relative.

KAISER IS HELD TO PLEDGE

Submarine Pledge Accepted by Wilson But German Conditions Rejected; Lansing Talks Reply

Washington, May 9.—A new warning to Germany is contained in the reply of President Wilson to the latest Berlin note on the submarine situation.

The note accepts the German statement in so far as it abandoned the former U-boat policy.

But President Wilson insists that the United States will expect "scrupulous execution" of Germany's promise.

But the President's reply refuses any conditions or suggestion of conditions made or implied in the last German statement.

The President says the suggestion cannot be entertained that the rights of Americans on the high seas be "made contingent" upon the conduct of any other belligerent.

There is a strong intimation of a flat refusal of all negotiations if Berlin makes the changed submarine policy contingent upon the action of any other belligerent.

Secretary of State Lansing issued the following statement, explanatory of the administration's action:

> The great part of the German answer is devoted to matters which this government cannot discuss with the German government. The only questions of right which can be discussed with that government are those arising out of its action or out of our own, and in no event those questions which are the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the United States and any other country.
>
> The essence of the answer is that Germany yields to our representations with regards to rights of merchant ships and non-combatants on the high seas and engages to observe the recognized rules of international law governing naval warfare in using her submarines against merchant ships.

KAISER MUST SETTLE.

> So long as she lives up to this altered policy we can have no reason to quarrel with her on that score, though the losses resulting from the violation of American rights by German submarine commanders operated under the former policy will have to be settled.
>
> While our differences with Great Britain cannot form a subject of discussion with Germany, it can be stated that in our dealings with the British government we are acting as we are unquestionably bound to act in view of the explicit treaty engagements with that government.
>
> We have treaty obligations as to the manner in which matters in dispute between the two governments are to be handled. We offered to assume mutually

WOMAN IN BIG POISON PLOT

Inmates Paid Fixed Sum for Care for Life; Allege Deaths Occurred Almost Monthly

By International News Service.

Hartford, May 9.—Mrs. Mary Archer Gilligan, proprietress of the Archer Home for Elderly People, is under arrest today on a charge of murder.

Deaths of twenty inmates are being investigated. Forty-eight deaths occurred in the home in the past five years.

Mrs. Gilligan is specifically charged with having caused the death of Franklin R. Andrews, who died on May 30, 1914. According to the certificate drawn up by Dr. H. F. King of Windsor, death was due to gastric ulcers.

DISINTER BODY.

The body was disinterred from its grave in the Cheshire Cemetery one week ago. Great secrecy surrounded the efforts of the police. The body was taken from the cemetery under cover of darkness by direction of Coroner Eli Mix of New Haven county.

An autopsy was performed by Dr. Arthur J. Wolff of Hartford. He acted under the orders of Hugh M. Alcorn, and under the guidance of State Policeman Robert E. F. Hurley. Dr. Wolff said:

> We have sufficient evidence to show a clear case of poisoning. In my investigation I found that arsenic had been used freely.

FOUND POISON TRACES.

Dr. Wolff would not tell how many autopsies had been performed nor how many bodies had been exhumed. He did say that his investigations had been on a wholesale scale, in the vicinity of Hartford and in various other parts of the State. He said:

> I am not prepared at this time to make public the result. My report will be made to the State's attorney, but it will be several days before it is finished.
>
> Another body has been exhumed and poison traces have been found.

The State police have been working for more than a year on reports of suspicious circumstances surrounding deaths in the Archer Home.

Captain Hurley has been aided by Sheriff E. A. Welch. Sheriff Welch said the investigation was instituted as a result of rumors that had spread through Windsor of certain happenings in the Archer Home during the late hours of night or early in the morning before daylight.

STRANGE ACTIVITY AT NIGHT.

He told of figures being seen leaving the premises and of lights dancing from one window to another, showing that persons were awake and about at a time when everybody should have been asleep.

Sheriff Welch declared the first clew came in the form of an anonymous message that a body had been secretly removed from the home and hurried away to the railway station, where it was placed on an early morning train.

Acting upon this, Captain Hurley and Sheriff Welch centered their energies upon an investigation of the home. They learned that inmates, upon entering the institution were forced to pay sums varying from

TRY IN VAIN TO SETTLE DIVORCE

Ralph G. Carpenter to Press His Suit Against His Wife in Spite of Attempts at Reconciliation

Concord, N. H., May 9.—Counsel for Ralph G. Carpenter of Wolfboro and Boston, on the one side, and for his attractive wife, Marguerite Paul Carpenter, on the other, discussed for nine hours the divorce suit of their clients, finally giving up attempts at a settlement and deciding to take the case into court today.

The case is expected to be one of the most sensational of its kind ever fought in the New Hampshire courts. About forty witnesses representing both sides were on hand today. A half dozen detectives, who are said to have been busy securing evidence for the Carpenters, arrived at the Eagle Hotel last night.

General Frank S. Streeter, chief counsel for Mrs. Carpenter, and Senator Nathaniel Martin, counsel for Carpenter, were in consultation from 11 o'clock until Judge John Kivil adjourned court until 10 o'clock today.

NEAR IN COURT ROOM.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter attended court. They sat near each other but showed no signs of recognition. Mrs. Carpenter was neatly attired in black, wearing a large picture hat. She was accompanied by her father, William Paul, an elderly, prosperous-looking gentleman.

A large array of legal talent is on hand. It includes many of the most prominent lawyers of Boston and of New Hampshire. Mr. Carpenter has Senator Nathaniel E. Martin, Michael J. Shugrue of Boston, Wilfred H. Smart of Cambridge, J. Joseph Doherty of this city, and former Speaker William J. Britton of Wolfboro.

Mrs. Carpenter's counsel is headed by General Frank S. Streeter, his partner, K. Woodworth, and Walter I. Badger of Boston.

Mr. Carpenter spends most of his time driving about town in his automobile, a gray touring car. He refuses to talk to the newspaper men.

Garrison G. Depew, who is named in the suit by Carpenter as one of the co-respondents, is here with his bride. J. Gould Day, another co-respondent, is also in town.

Mrs. Carpenter is accompanied by her sister, Mrs. H. S. McDermott of San Francisco. Mrs. Carpenter in her original answer, filed some time ago, denied the charge of unfaithfulness and charged her husband with treatment injurious to health. She also charged that George A. Carpenter of Wolfboro and Boston, her father-in-law, had conspired to alienate her child's affections.

MAKES NEW CHARGES.

In an amendment to her original answer, filed yesterday, Mrs. Carpenter declared her husband had also been guilty of extreme cruelty to her. Among other acts she specified the following:

> At the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, in the Spring of 1907, the libellant twisted the libelee's wrists, and threw her violently to the floor.
>
> On another occasion in their apartment in the city of Boston, the libellant caught the libelee by the wrist, violently forced her into the bathroom and threw her up against a radiator.
>
> On a train in Florida the libellant took hold of the libelee by the throat, and on other occasions the libellant has twisted the libelee's wrists, and otherwise laid hands on her.

Time to Treat Carranza as a Foe, Says Borah

Washington, May 9.

SENATOR BORAH of Idaho, a Republican of the Committee on Foreign Relations, declared that the time was almost here when General Carranza would have to be treated as an enemy of the United States, for embarrassing the American government in its defence of the border and in its efforts to punish Mexican raiders.

"After having driven out Huerta we left chaos to reign supreme over the interests of Mexico and our own citizens therein for nearly two years," declared Senator Borah.

"Then we recognized one of the bitterest foes of America in Mexico. Carranza had manifested his hatred toward us in many ways.

"I venture to say you will not find in the pages of history an instance in which a strong, powerful nation, a nation professing service towards all mankind and assuming to be the guardian of the rights of humanity, has ever submitted as we have to the ravishment of its women and the murder of its men as we have at the hands of the Mexicans.

"These things have happened to our people and we have submitted to it, not while our citizens were on foreign soil, though protected by solemn treaty, but even when they were upon their own territory and under their own flag.

"It must be apparent to anyone at all familiar with the situation that Carranza cannot restore order in Mexico, and cannot establish a government and, what concerns us most, he cannot protect the border."

1,000 STRIKE ON DORCHESTER TUNNEL JOB

Nearly 1,000 subway workers employed in the new Dorchester tunnel went out on strike today for 50 cents a day increase, and pay day on Saturday instead of Tuesday. Work on the tunnel was entirely halted.

The men, who are employed by the P. McGovern Contracting Company, now receive from $2 to $3.50 a day, but owing to the nature of their work and their susceptibility to caisson disease they desire more money. Mr. McGovern said:

"I know absolutely nothing about the strike. The men have not come to me or sent to me regarding an increase. They received an increase of 50 cents a day on April 1 when they made a demand. I haven't anything further to say."

The strikers were worked in three shifts of eight hours each engaged in digging the new tunnel to Dorchester. At present they are paid on Tuesday, but declare that with this system three days' pay is held back, and therefore they wish to be paid on Saturday for the week's work.

LOOK FOR BREAK AT BORDER

Drastic Move by U. S. Expected as Result of New Mexican Move and Latest Raid

Mexico City, May 9.—It is officially announced that steps have been taken to prevent the entry of more American troops into Mexican territory.

There is no explanation of this act, which appears to contravene a statement made just previously that the Mexican government was endeavoring to settle amicably the crisis arising out of the Glen Springs incident. It may mean that Obregon was secretly ordered to use his troops if necessary to block the entry of more forces from the United States.

By H. H. STANSBURY.

El Paso, Tex., May 9.—State Department representatives here have just notified consular agents throughout Mexico to get all American citizens out of that country with the least possible delay. This action followed the receipt of news from Mexico City that the Mexican government had ordered that no more United States troops be permitted to enter Mexico.

"An event of tremendous interest to the people of the United States appears to be near at hand and unavoidable."

This statement was obtained in a high official quarter, after a secret consultation between Major-Generals Scott and Funston and Mexican Minister of War Alvaro Obregon.

At the moment General Scott was pacing the reception room of his private car, with hands folded behind his back and head bent low. The peacemaker was silent and grave. When spoken to he stopped short and asked:

"What is the news from the Big Bend country?"

ON VERGE OF BREAK.

General Funston was busy in another part of the car with his clerks and stenographers arranging for new troop movements. Lieutenant-Colonel Miche and Colonel Fitzhugh Lee, the aides, were occupied with the message giving President Wilson full details of the last Mexican conference.

Across the Rio Grande at Juarez, General Obregon is holding a conference with the few of his generals who are still here.

Everything seemed to indicate that the future relations between Mexico and the United States were likely to be determined today by a few short messages between Washington and the private car, which is the headquarters of Generals Scott and Funston.

It had been reliably reported dur-

LANSING TELLS GERMANY U. S. MUST FLATLY REJECT CONDITIONAL CONCESSIONS

The United States refuses to believe that the assurances made by Germany were contingent on the success of the United States in obtaining concessions from the allies. If Germany intended such concessions to be conditional, the United States would flatly reject them.—From Secretary Lansing's official summary of new United States note to Berlin.

similar obligations with Germany, but the offer was declined.

GIVES NOTE'S FEATURES.

When, however, the subject in dispute is a continuing menace to American lives, it is doubtful whether such obligations apply unless the menace is removed during the pendency of the proceedings.

The essential features of the note cabled to Berlin are:

1—That the United States accepts Germany's declaration of abandonment of her former submarine policy.

2—That continuation of friendly relations depends on the scrupulous observance of the new altered policy.

3—That the United States refuses to believe that the assurances made by Germany were contingent on the success of the United States in obtaining concessions from the allies.

4—That if Germany intended such concessions to be conditional the United States would flatly reject them.

The note of the Imperial German government, under date of May 4, 1916, has received careful consideration by the government of the United States. It is especially noted as indicating the purpose of the imperial government as to the future that it "is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operation of the war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents," and that it is determined to impose upon all its commanders at sea the limitations of the recognized rules of international law upon which the government of the United States has insisted.

Throughout the months which have elapsed since the imperial government announced, on February 4, 1915, its submarine policy, now happily abandoned, the government of the United States has been constantly guided and restrained by motives of friendship in its patient efforts to bring to an amicable settlement the critical questions arising from that policy.

RELIES ON PROMISES.

Accepting the imperial government's declaration of its abandonment of the policy which has so seriously menaced the good relations between the two countries, the government of the United States will rely upon a scrupulous execution henceforth of the now altered policy of the imperial government, such as will remove the principal danger to an interruption of good relations existing between the United States and Germany.

The government of the United States feels it necessary to state that it takes for granted that the Imperial German government does not intend to imply that the maintenance of its newly announced policy is in any way contingent upon the course or result of diplomatic negotiations between the United States and any other belligerent government, notwithstanding the fact that certain passages in the imperial government's note of the fourth instant might appear to be susceptible of that construction.

EXPLAINS ATTITUDE.

In order, however, to avoid any possible misunderstanding, the government of the United States notifies the imperial government that it cannot entertain, much less discuss, a suggestion that respect by German naval authorities for the rights of citizens of the United States upon the high seas should in any way, or in the slightest degree, be made contingent upon the conduct of any other government affecting the rights of neutrals and non-combatants. Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint; absolute, not relative.

The note is the shortest and sharpest communication exchanged between Berlin and Washington since the submarine debate began a year ago. It is void of all the diplomatic verbiage and protestations of friendly feeling that has characterized former notes sent by this government.

FORCE A SHOWDOWN.

Administration officials made it plain that the note was intended to force "a showdown"; to demonstrate whether Germany has met in full the demands of the United States or whether it had made only partial, conditional concessions, reserving to itself the right to judge just how far it should go in meeting the demands of the United States.

There was some surprise in official, diplomatic and Congressional circles over the brusqueness of the note. To Congressional leaders who have been active in efforts to avert a break with Germany the note came as a shock.

Careful perusal of the note convinced these officials that it practically closes the door to further discussion of the submarine issue with Germany.

NO REPLY CALLED FOR.

In explanation of their action in sending this note, after the view became generally accepted that no reply was called for, officials said that unless the President had replied, his silence would have been construed as tacit acceptance of the entire German reply, including the section suggesting negotiations with Great Britain.

German Embassy officials were concerned when informed of the note's contents. They could not attempt to forecast what reception the note would receive in Berlin, but it was manifest they believed there would be a dash of cold water on the rising hopes recently expressed by Berlin officials that the submarine controversy had been settled.

Diplomatic circles pointed out that the United States in its Lusitania note of July 21 last, extended an invitation to Germany to co-operate with it in a movement to bring all belligerents into compliance with laws respecting freedom of the seas.

The suggestion that the United States treat with Great Britain for cessation of illegal acts was made by Berlin, these officials say, as an acceptance of this invitation.

KAISER FOR PEACE ACT BY U. S.

Special to International News Service and London Daily Telegraph.

Rotterdam, May 9.—According to information from a reliable source, the German government has already given orders to its submarine commanders, in accordance with the concessions stated in the reply to the American ultimatum. It may be expected that, for a time, at least, there will be no sinking of unarmed passenger ships, although there is always the possibility of a repetition of "mistakes."

As to the motive for this change of policy, it may be accepted as a fact that the Kaiser gave Ambassador Gerard to understand that he cherished the hope that President Wilson would take some step in the direction of peace negotiations.

As to the demand that America shall exert pressure toward ending the so-called starvation blockade, the German government knows very well that America will take no such action as it suggested.

MAY RESUME U-BOAT WAR

If nothing happens, the new orders to the submarine commanders may be withdrawn, and the U-boat war be resumed with its full frightfulness and with the almost inevitable consequence of America ranging herself with Germany's enemies.

It would then be open to the German government, balked in its present effort to bring about a premature peace, to tell its people that, with the world in arms against it, continuance of the struggle is impossible.

This may seem far-fetched, but it is the view held in authoritative circles. It can be stated that the Kaiser and the German government, as far as the west is concerned, are prepared to give up absolutely any claim on France and Belgium. This includes not merely territory, but all demands for guarantees, both military and economic, of which Von Bethmann-Holweg has always spoken in the past.

EXPECT DRIVE IN EAST.

In regard to the east, the old ambitions remain, with doubtful modification, of full autonomy for Poland. Courland, they still say, they will hold. Germany's military plan is to obtain full, armed possession of that province. It is learned that preparations for an attack are well in hand, and an immediate blow may be attempted against the Russians on that part of the front.

The purpose is a part of the plan now on foot for the opening of peace negotiations. This is the only theatre of war where the German General Staff, after the Verdun failure, believes it can strike an immediate and effective blow.

Berlin Looks for Wilson Peace Move

Berlin, May 9.—The public now believes the German-American controversy definitely closed. The newspapers are discussing the possibility that President Wilson may prove acceptable to Germany as a peace mediator when the time comes to end the world war.

Certain of the papers, commenting guardedly, point out that the peace reference in Germany's reply affords the American executive an opportunity to make a definite move for peace.

"The German note contains one passage which we consider of the utmost importance," said the Voerwaerts, "namely, the reference to the fact that Germany has twice within recent months declared its readiness for a peace which would secure its vital interests. In conservative papers in the last few days the opinion has been expressed that behind the action of the American government there was hidden an intention to step forward a peace mediator. Perhaps this passage in the German note will give Mr. Wilson an occasion to make public the terms of peace he believes possible."

"President Wilson can perhaps do more than merely maintain peace between Germany and the United States," said the National Liberal Gazette. "Fate has thrown such unheard-of power in this man's lap that he could do still other things for bleeding, suffering humanity. Our answer shows him the way."

The majority of the German papers do not emphasize the peace reference in the German reply possibly fearing that English journals will accept such editorial comment as an indication of German weakness.

Kaiser Urges Pope To Make Peace Plea

London, May 9.—The correspondent at Rotterdam of the Exchange Telegraph Company cabled the following:

On the occasion of the Easter festival Emperor William sent an autograph letter to Pope Benedict expressing the hope that the pontiff, with the King of Spain, would be able to construct a scheme with the object of bringing together under the auspicious emblem of the dove and olive branch a conference of belligerents for consideration of an immediate armistice in the fervent hope of securing an early peace without detriment to the legitimate aspirations of nationalities.

The correspondent says he obtained this information from a circular just issued by the German Humanity League. The circular also says considerable significance is attached to the arrival in Rome of envoys from the Kings of Bavaria and Saxony, who had prolonged audiences with Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state.

ARREST HEAD OF HOME FOR AGED FOR MURDER

$1,000 to $2,000, for which they were to be taken care of for life.

MONTHLY OCCURRENCE.

The investigators soon found that deaths were almost a monthly occurrence and upon nearly every occasion the same routine of removing the bodies at night was followed.

When asked what the average life of an inmate was after entering the Archer Home, Sheriff Welch replied:

> As closely as I can judge they lived about three or four months. Deaths occurred only among male inmates.

Mrs. Gilligan refused to make a statement when Captain Hurley and Sheriff Welch placed her under arrested. She was immediately brought to the county jail in this city and held without bail. She will be given a hearing today. According to Sheriff Welch, a warrant charging the deaths of more than three of the inmates will be served upon her then.

HUSBAND'S SUDDEN DEATH.

Mrs. Archer Gilligan, who is forty-one years old, first conducted a home for aged people at Newington, Ct., in 1901. She moved to Windsor in 1907, and has since conducted the home there on Prospect street. There are fifteen patients there now.

She first married James F. Archer, who died in 1910. In November, 1913, she married Michael W. Gilligan, who, the police say, died suddenly on February 20, 1914.

On the night before his death, the police say, Gilligan made a will turning all his property over to his wife. The will was not admitted to probate on a technicality.

Mrs. Archer Gilligan has one daughter, Mary, aged eighteen, an assistant at the home. A niece and a servant are the only others employed at the establishment.

U. S. TROOPER TELLS STORY OF MEXICAN RAID ON BORDER POST

By International News Service.

Marathon, Tex., May 9.—Sergeant Charles E. Smith, who was in command of the detachment of nine American troopers at Glen Springs when that town was attacked by Mexican bandits, today told, for the first time, the story of the raid.

Smith is a young man, lean faced and determined, who speaks in short, business-like sentences. Both his feet were badly burned when his sleeping quarters were set afire by the bandits before their shooting awoke the camp.

Here is his story:

I had two sentries out Friday night, Privates Defres and Burke. About 11 o'clock they saw some dark figures creeping near them. At the same time they heard the crackling of a blaze to their right.

Defres fired the first shot. He killed a Mexican. Then he and Burke ran for a tent, where four of my men were sleeping.

MEXICANS WORE MASKS.

Privates Cohen, Rogers, and myself were in the quarters, an adobe building with a thatched roof.

We were awakened and know in a minute what the trouble was. We ran to the windows and commenced to fire. We fired constantly, but whenever a Mexican fell there appeared to be five to replace him.

The Mexicans kept up a hot fire. Some of them yelled, "Viva Villa and some "Viva Carranza!"

The majority wore masks or handkerchiefs over their faces. This leads me to believe they belonged on this side of the border. In fact we recognized one of them.

When they saw they could not budge us by rifle firing they tried a charge. There were about 600 of them and they all came on at once. We repulsed them the first time, and then again. Our fire was too hot for them.

LITTLE BAND FOUGHT GAMELY.

However, the six man in the tent found things a trifle too warm and could not hold out.

"We're coming in," they yelled, made a dash and got in through the window.

Only one man was wounded in the house—Private Burke. When I saw Burke shot it got my goat so bad that I aimed at a wounded Mexican who was saying his prayers a little way off, and let go at him.

When they threw burning torches on the roof we knew we had lost the fight.

I told the boys to fire a volley. The Mexicans answered. When their firing had slowed down I gave the word and we made our dash.

FOUGHT WAY TO SAFETY.

Cohen tried to get out through the window and was shot dead. Rogers dropped from a bullet before he had ran four feet from the shack. Coloe ran into an outpost in the hills and they got him.

I ran into Mr. Compton's house looking for the Comptons, but could find no one. So I lit out for the hills. I got behind a rock and managed to hold the beggars off until about 7 o'clock in the morning. Then they got tired and quit, going off towards the river.

There Sergeant Smith ends his story. He doesn't tell how he "held the beggars off," that he was clad only in his underwear and suffering intense pain from his burned feet while he fought against almost overpowering odds.

U. S. FACES CRISIS WITH MEXICO OVER NEW ORDER BARRING TROOPS

ing the day that Carranza had directed the Mexican Minister of War to accept the terms suggested in the tentative agreement by General Scott. This called for the gradual withdrawal of American troops.

Obregon is said to have been unwilling to obey the order of the first chief. The Mexican official motored from Juarez to El Paso and met the American generals at their private car in the Southern Pacific yards. As he stepped from his automobile, accompanied by Juan Mador, Assistant Secretary of Foreign Relations, the optimistic smile ever present at his previous public appearances was noticeable by its absence.

There was no trace of pleasantry noticed in the preliminary to this meeting. The conference was started with but few formalities.

General Funston sent an urgent request to the manager of the Southern Pacific, asking that the famous limited train which passes through San Antonio at 4 a. m. be directed today to pick up cars that are to bring a company of infantry from Fort Sam Houston to Langtry.

Information reached Funston that Langtry, which is only twelve miles from the border, was threatened with attack by Mexicans. The telegram said the citizens of the place were standing guard with a garrison of eleven men all night.

BELIEVE SENATE WILL VOTE FOR BRANDEIS

By International News Service.

Washington, May 9.—Senator Charles A. Culberson of Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has made public the text of the letter written to him by President Wilson, urging the confirmation of Louis D. Brandeis as associate justice of the Supreme Court.

An effort was made in the committee to fix the time when the vote shall be taken. Objection was offered by opponents of Mr. Brandeis, and some Democrats being absent the case again went over.

Should the nomination be reported adversely or without recommendation, it is believed the majority of the Senate will vote for confirmation.

At present there are known to be two Democratic members of the committee opposed to confirmation. As the case now stands it is claimed by a member that if a vote were taken rejection would be ordered.

Says British Ship Opened Fire as U-Boat Warned

By International News Service.

New York, May 9. — The Dutch steamer Barendrecht from Seville, Spain, reported here that on April 11 she was held up by an Austrian submarine, which fired a shell across her bows and then signaled that a boat be sent with the ship's papers for examination.

Captain Coerkamp complied with the demand and he was then given permission to proceed. The captain said:

> The submarine commander said that the day before, he summoned a British steamer to stop and that the Britisher opend fire on the submersible.

Later the same day the Barendrecht came across an open boat with nine Russians, survivors of the Russian bark Imperator, which had been torpedoed by an Austrian submarine. The men were taken aboard and landed in Barcelona.

Russians Start Advance Again Into Asia Minor

Petrograd, May 9.—Russian Caucasus armies are descending from the high Armenian plateau into the valleys of Asia Minor against the Turks.

The descent of the Russians westward toward Ersingan proved the mot difficult of all the Russian lines of advance. Here until the last few days Winter snows held, and this, added to other hazards accompanying the descent from a tableland averaging a mile above sea level has made satisfactory progress impossible.

To the southwest, in Mesopotamia, however, owing to the fact that the season is further advanced here, the descent has been easier, and the Turks south of Bitlis are being driven from a series of fortified positions.

4 MORE IRISH REVOLT LEADERS EXECUTED

By International News Service.

London, May 9.—Four more Irish patriots have been shot. Official announcement is made of the condemnation by court-martial in Dublin, followed by the immediate execution of these revolutionary leaders, Cornelius Culbert, J. J. Haston, Edmund Kent and Michael Mallon.

The first meeting of the Irish Nationalist Parliamentary party since the Dublin outbreak will be held today.

There is strong feeling among the responsible leaders against any further executions of revolutionists and there are also negotiations proceeding between the Nationalist and Ulster parties on the question of disarming Ireland except the regular troops.

PUSH IRISH COMPULSION.

The Ulster party will bring forward a motion to bring Ireland under the military service bill. John Redmond will oppose the plan.

Meanwhile, Augustine Birrell's post as chief secretary for Ireland remains unfilled. The report that Louis Harcourt was appointed was denied, his health forbidding the acceptance of this arduous position.

The cry of "murder, murder," was launched at Premier Asquith in the House of Commons. The speaker was Laurence Ginnell, an Irish member of Parliament and a Nationalist.

Even Redmond, leader of the Nationalists, staunchly as he has supported the government, uttered in the House an earnest protest against the policy of exterminating the misguided enthusiasts whose effort to establish an Irish republic was frustrated by the military.

IRELAND GROWS BITTER.

In the form of a question to the Premier, Redmond conveyed a strong suggestion that the continued crop of military executions in Dublin was creating a growing bitterness among classes of the Irish people who had not been in sympathy with the revolutionary movement.

He desired to know whether the government would not follow its own precedent in the case of General Botha in South Africa and cause General Maxwell to discontinue the executions.

Premier Asquith made a cautious reply, in which he intimated that General Maxwell, in whose judgment he had great confidence, had been in direct communication with the cabinet at every stage of the trials and that his instructions, which agreed with his own inclinations, were not to sanction the infliction of the death penalty except in the case of responsible persons proved to have been actual ring-leaders in the revolt.

PLEADS FOR CLEMENCY.

In regard to the rank and file, the premier assured Redmond that his pleas for clemency had not fallen on unwilling ears. He added that the cabinet was anxiously considering what disposition should be made of the less guilty of the revolutionists who bore arms in the revolt, and that the executions would come to an end as soon as the demands of justice would permit.

The accusing shouts of Ginnell were drawn forth by another reply from the premier. The question was equivalent to a demand that no more Irishmen should be put to death by court-martial until the House of Commons had been given an oportunity to discuss the question.

Asquith replied that he could not give any such undertaking, and it was then that Ginnell threw the House into a tumult by stretching his arm dramatically toward the government benches and shouting "Murder, Murder, Murder."

HINT OFFICIALS IN REVOLT.

Another statement made by the Premier was considered highly significant in view of the stories that have traveled from Dublin. The Premier said that the Cabinet had taken measures to find out whether any government officials in Dublin had been concerned in the revolt.

It has become known that the Dublin postoffice and other government offices were hotbeds of revolution.

That the government is really trying in a half-hearted way to limit the number of executions is indicated by the large number of death sentences that are being commuted to imprisonment.

Nineteen such cases are reported in the latest announcement, following the account of the last four executions. Terms of penal servitude of varying lengths were imposed on the nineteen saved from death. James O'Sullivan received eight years, Vincent Polo, five years, William Carrigan, three years.

SULLIVAN IS RELEASED.

The authorities have tracked down the president of the revolt volunteers, Professor John MacNeill, and he is now in custody. The professor, who is a member of the faculty of the National University, disappeared after the outbreak of the revolution.

James M. Sullivan, former American minister at Santo Domingo, is now at liberty. From Dublin he wrote to Ambassador Page to the effect that the military authorities had released him.

Sir Roger Casement will be arraigned in the Bow Street Police Court on Thursday for a preliminary hearing of his case by Magistrate Sir John Dickinson. It is expected that four or five days will be occupied in the taking of evidence before he is remanded for trial in a higher court.

The Rev. Father Waters, president of the Catholic University School here, died from gunshot wounds. He was shot while standing in the doorway of the school during the disturbances.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW BLAMES BRITAIN FOR REVOLT IN IRELAND

By GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.

London, May 9.—No wise man now uses the word "traitor" at all; he who fights for the independence of his country may be an ignorant, disastrous fool, but he is not a traitor, and will never be regarded as one by his fellow-countrymen.

All the men and women of the Sinn Fein volunteers fought and died for their country as sincerely as any soldier in Flanders fought and died for his.

REVOLTERS NOT TO BLAME.

As a republican, forlorn hope, their ideal cannot be insulted without insulting our ally, France; our friend, America, and, by the time the whole world has become republican and romance has covered their graves with flowers, the last of the Irish rebellions will be a stock subject of British heroic verse.

Had Home Rule been in operation, not only would both the Sinn Fein and Ulster volunteers have been technically traitors, but the Irish Parliament would have introduced compulsory military service to get rid of them if it had found itself too weak to prevent such armed forces from being raised.

Whose fault is the dense ignorance and romantic folly, which made the unfortunate Sinn Feiners' mistake a piece of hopeless mischief for a patriotic stroke for freedom such as Shelley sang of and Byron took up arms for?

RAPS ENGLAND.

Were they taught citizenship in their schools? Were their votes bought with anything but balderdash?

Granted that their heads, like their newspapers, were stuffed with ultra-insular patriotic conceit, is this a time at which England can, with any countenance, throw a stone at them on that score?

Has not the glorification of patriotism, of reckless defiance of superior numbers and resources, of readiness to kill and be killed for the old flag, implacable hatred of the enemy and invader, the sacred rights of small nations to self-government and freedom, been thundered at them for more than a year by British writers who talk and feel as if England were still the England of Alfred, and Socialism, the only alternative to the Sinn Fein, were sedition and blasphemy.

Is it not a little unreasonable for us to clamor for the blood of the men who have simply taken us at our word and competed for our hero worshipers with the Belgians and Serbians, who have also devoted their Sackville streets to fire and slaughter in a struggle at impossible odds with giant empires?

PRAISES THE REVOLTERS.

I can speak my mind freely on this matter, for I have attacked the separation of England with every device of invective and irony and dialectic at my command.

My last onslaught on the Sinn Fein reached Ireland two days before the insurrection. It was too late.

But exasperating though the mischief, folly and ignorance of the uprising was, these men were patriotic according to their lights, brave according to our lights, public in their aims and honorable in their republican and political ideal.

What is to be done with them?

As to the many, the answer is simple: Bury them.

SAYS JOFFRE NEEDS THEM.

But what about the others? Prisoners of war. It would be hardly decent to ask them to take the oath of allegiance to the English King; they are republicans, but the notion that they are any fonder of the Protestant monarchy of Prussia is nonsense.

Why not make a present of them to Joffre, with the hint that his right wing is the safest place for them? He needs good republicans, and France knows of the old value of the Irish brigade.

Report Germans Buying Land on Bay State Coast

New York, May 9.—A sort of unofficial volunteer service for the United States has been recently incorporated at Albany by a number of New York business men, under the title of "The Defence Reports Committee."

It is already investigating a report that the German government agents recently secretly purchased fifteen miles of land on the Massachusetts coast.

Hugh McAtamney, a prominent New York advertising man, one of the active directors of the committee, asserted that this report came from a man who is considered trustworthy.

The committee, he said, is going to find out who are the owners of all the coast lands on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts of the United States.

"One of our principal objects," he said, "is to find out certain defence information for the government, which will be made public with certain restrictions imposed by the government."

Anti-Aircraft Gunnery Taken Up by Marines

A company of United States marines, skilled in high altitude gunnery, has been attached to the advance base brigade of the United States Marine Corps, and will be known as the Anti-Aircraft Gun Company.

This is the first aero-defence company organized in the marine corps, if not the first in the United States.

FEARS HIS WIFE IS SUICIDE

By International News Service.

New York, May 9.—Mrs. John Eldred, wife of a wealthy paper manufacturer, of Ashland, N. H., and Cohasset, Mass., has mysteriously vanished in New York City. Last Thursday afternoon she left the Hotel McAlpin, where she had been staying with her husband, and started on a tour of various stores to buy summer clothing. Since then no trace of her has been found.

Mr. Eldred, on Thursday night, asked the police to search for his wife but requested that her disappearance be kept secret. Detectives were sent out. After four days of fruitless seeking, Mr. Eldred decided to make the facts public in hope of getting a clew.

An odd feature in connection with her disappearance was that she left the hotel dressed in her poorest clothing. She wore a mixed gray suit she had intended discarding, and a black hat she had worn for some time. She had only a small sum of money in her possession. Mr. Eldred said:

> Coming here from Boston on the steamboat, Mrs. Eldred was very much depressed. I believe it possible she may have committed suicide. For more than two years my wife had been suffering from diabetes.
>
> This illness was followed by melancholia. Five months ago, after she received treatment in a sanitarium at Melrose, Mass., the physicians discharged her. Her condition at that time was greatly improved. She had everything to live for.

Mr. Eldred added that his wife constantly talked of death during their trip to this city, and inquired if the water was very cold. He added:

> Upon arriving in New York she plunged into the business of replenishing her wardrobe, she bought many light dresses of bright colors. She had an appointment with her dressmaker Friday for several fittings.
>
> This activity seemed to cheer her up somewhat. Her father was Gustavus A. Damon, a well-known hotel man of Boston. She was a brilliant woman. We have made every possible search since Thursday without success.

Wilson Almost Tosses Hat Into Ring--Circus Ring

Washington, May 9.—The only reason that President Wilson's hat isn't in the ring today—that is, the circus ring—is maybe because he needs it.

At any rate, the President came near tossing it into the sawdust while visiting the circus here with his wife and a party of friends.

As he entered the "big tent," amid the cheers of the crowd, the President smilingly uncovered. His smile widening, he then moved as though to cast his hat right into the middle of the ring itself.

The crowd quickly caught the point and gave him another lusty cheer.

The Presidential party occupied front seats and enjoyed everything from peanuts to elephants. The President kept himself cool by means of a palm leaf fan, and followed the antics of the clowns as happily as a school kid.

Throughout his visit not a thing occurred to submarine his pleasure.

Report Orduna to Be Sunk by German U-Boat

New York, May 9.—A report is in circulation here that orders have been issued from Berlin to German submarine commanders to torpedo the Orduna, a Cunard liner, carrying a tremendous cargo of munitions and 300 passenges.

Germany, according to rumor, would seek by this act to prove that submarine warfare could be carried on legitimately, the plan being to carefully unload the passengers and crew before sending the Orduna to the bottom.

Officials of the Cunard Line denied having any information of this nature. No wireless reports have been received from the vessel since she sailed May 2.

KAISER TO EXCHANGE BRITISH PRISONERS

London, May 9.—The Foreign Office is informed by the United States Ambassador that the German government has agreed to the employment of a British hospital ship to transport British and German prisoners of war awaiting repatriation. As Germany has required a fortnight's notice of the day repatriation could be effected, arrangements have been made for the hospital ship to reach Flushing with a party of German incapacitated on May 24, returning with a party of British incapacitated prisoners.

SENTENCE BOMBPLOT MEN TODAY

By International News Service.

New York, May 9.—Robert Fay, Walter Scholz and Paul Daeche were found guilty of conspiracy to destroy munitions vessels leaving New York for ports of the allied nations. The jury, when bringing in the verdict, recommended to United States Judge Howe that clemency be extended to Daeche. Sentences will be imposed today.

The defendants were found guilty of conspiracy to despoil shipping and conspiracy to despoil underwriters. Sentences for each may be four years' imprisonment and $20,000 fine.

United States District Attorney Marshall will decide today when Max Breitung, nephew of Edward Breitung, Herbert Keinzle and Englebert Bronkhurst, now under bail on similar indictments to those filed against Fay, Scholz and Daeche, will be brought to trial.

Arthur Kellgren, twenty-three, a seaman on the Hypatia, now at Pier 5, Commonwealth Docks, was arrested today by officers of Division 6, charged with assault and battery on Henry Henrickson, a shipmate. U-BOAT SANK FRENCH BARK 6 DAYS AGO

PANAMA CANAL

AMERICA'S PROUDEST TROPHIES

The electrification of 440 miles of main line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway between Harlowton, Mont., and Avery, Idaho, across the Belt, Rocky and Bitter Root Mountains, which form the Great Continental Divide, and the digging of the Panama Canal, stand linked as the greatest engineering achievements of this generation.

The Canal ushers in a new era of ocean travel. "St. Paul" electrification heralds a new era in transcontinental railroading—mastering forever the stupendous obstacles of the mountains—carrying traffic over the massive barriers with comparative ease and with pronounced saving in cost—decidedly improving train operation—practically eliminating all trouble from cold and snow—making mountain travel clean and mountain vistas clear.

While the ships at Panama have but 85 feet of altitude to surmount, the giant electric locomotives of the "St. Paul" must climb mile-high over the Great Continental Divide. Being the world's most powerful electric locomotives, fed with limitless energy from mountain waterpower, they haul with ease the all-steel "Olympian" and "Columbian" and the long heavily loaded freight trains—a thing unbelievable to that generation of men who considered these mountains an eternal barrier to commerce.

CHICAGO
Milwaukee & St. Paul
RAILWAY

The accomplishment of the first extensive main line electrification in the world is but another item in the long list of achievements of "The St. Paul Road" in improving railroad transportation. When arranging your next trip to the Pacific Northwest consider well the many travel advantages individual to this railway.

Saco Firemen Still Hunting for 'Ghost Fire'

Saco, Me., May 9.—While smoke continues to fill the rooms in the second and third floors of a Main-street brick block owned by the York Manufacturing Company, where firemen and others have been hunting for a fire since early Sunday morning, all efforts to locate the source of the smoke have proved unavailing.

Smoke was pouring from the upper windows and firemen were of the opinion that a fire must be raging between the walls of the basement; yet they were unable to locate any.

The firemen call it the "ghost fire."

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD UPHELD BY TRAINMEN

The 10,000 trainmen employed upon the railroads of Massachusetts stand opposed to the scheme to oust the present Public Service Commission.

Authority to call their opposition to the attention of the State Legislature and to Governor McCall, himself, if necessary has been vested by them in their legislative representative, Walter L. McMenniman.

Mr. McMenniman announced today that he has already recorded their opposition with the House Ways and Means Committee.

UPHOLDS PRESENT BOARD.

"In recording the opposition to the bill reorganizing the Massachusetts Public Service Commission, I spoke for and in behalf of twenty-one lodges of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in this State and for 10,000 active members of that organization," said Mr. McMenniman.

Asked to explain the reasons why the Brotherhood stands opposed to the reorganization, Mr. McMenniman said:

"As a matter of principle, the great power of regulating the railroads of this State should be left in the hands of a commission of five rather than three members.

"From a practical viewpoint, we can see no reason for a change.

"We have always been given a square deal by the present commission.

ALWAYS TREATED FAIRLY.

"We have been before the commission day in and day out on all forms of petitions in the interest of safeguarding the lives of the men who work on the railroads, and we have always been treated courteously but, above all, fairly. Whether the decisions of the commission have been favorable or adverse, they have always been satisfactory.

"We know that the best interests of the railroad trainmen demand the present system of railroad regulation. It would be unwise to vest this power in the hands of a three-headed commission."

New Best Baby Contest to Find Real Champion of All New England!

Wilbert Coleman Welch, one of the babies entered in the Boston American contest.

Who and where is the one very best baby in all New England?

A contest is now underway to determine this important point, to find this baby and to hold the dimpled wonder up to the admiration of the public in general.

This New England contest is an enlargement of the Greater Boston Best Baby Contest, which ended last Saturday night. That contest was to determine the best baby in Boston and the thirty-nine other cities and towns in the Metropolitan District. This includes the communities in a thirteen-mile radius of the Massachusetts State House.

Now the contest is enlarged to find the best baby in New England. This is the way it is to be done.

The New England Best Baby Contest, now beginning, will be open to babies in New England, outside of Greater Boston, which means outside Boston and the thirty-nine other cities and towns in the Metropolitan District.

MEDALS FOR WINNERS.

The winner of the New England Contest will be matched against the winner of the Greater Boston Contest. The winner of this final match will be the champion of the Grand New England Best Baby Contest.

The final Grand New England Champion will be eligible to compete in the National Best Baby Contest.

This is all part of the big National Best Baby Contest which is being conducted by the Hearst newspapers in Boston, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

New England is divided into seven districts for the new contest, with gold, silver and bronze medals for the finest babies in each district and a silver cup for the New England winner, just as there are medal prizes for the Greater Boston Contest and a winner's silver cup.

The seven New England contest districts are as follows:

Connecticut, east of the Connecticut River.
Massachusetts, east of the Connecticut, excluding Metropolitan Boston.
Massachusetts, west of the Connecticut.
Rhode Island.
New Hampshire.
Vermont.
Maine.

In each of the seven districts a gold medal will be awarded the finest baby, silver medals to the second and third best, and bronze medals to the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh best.

FOR NEW ENGLAND BABIES.

That means a total of seven gold, fourteen silver and twenty-eight bronze medals. Capping this medallic pyramid stands the New England silver cup.

The only condition as to age is that the baby must be between six months and two years. If your baby was six months old by May 1 of this year he or she is eligible, providing the little one is not over twenty-four months old now.

Of course the baby's home must be within the district boundaries as outlined and NOT IN THE GREATER BOSTON DISTRICT.

The latter is particularly important. Greater Boston babies had their chance in the contest just ended. They cannot, of course, double up in the New England contest.

The thirty-nine cities and towns which, with Boston, made up the Greater Boston Contest territory were:

Arlington
Belmont
Braintree
Brookline
Chelsea
Cambridge
Canton
Cohasset
Dedham
Dover
Everett
Hingham

SEND ENTRY NOW.

If you wish to enter YOUR baby in the New England Contest, send in the entry or registration blank properly filled out. The blank is simple and easily understood. Great care should be used to get the measurements exactly right, especially the circumferences, or distances around head, breast and abdomen.

With the blank should be sent a letter describing the baby's habits, what accomplishments he or she may have, how many teeth, what words are spoken or attempted—also what sicknesses, if any.

TWO KILLED AS TROLLEY HITS WAGON

Attleboro, May 9.—Two men, brothers-in-law, were killed, one of them almost instantly, when a wagon on which they were riding was struck by a car on the North Attleboro & Providence line, at the corner of Pine road and Washington street, in South Attleboro.

Antone Pincus, forty, proprietor of Anthony's Express, Central Falls, R. I., was killed outright. He was thrown under the car, his skull being fractured.

His brother-in-law, George Kurowski, thirty-five, was hurled through the vestibule of the car, landing on the floor. He died inside of fifteen minutes.

Frank Balser, motorman of the car, was jammed in the vestibule and slightly injured. William Kennedy was the conductor. There were but few passengers, none of whom was injured.

Motorman Balser claims that he saw the wagon on which the two men were riding when it was but a short distance ahead at the side of the road, coming toward the car.

Then, suddenly the wagon swung onto the car tracks, he said, and the collision followed.

NOTES OF THE THEATRES

WALDRON'S CASINO—The greatest combination show of the Columbia Theatre wheel is the current attraction. It is well-called the "Two-in-One," for rarely on the stage anywhere are two such popular and high-salaried comedians as "Sliding" Billy Watson and Ed Lee Wrothe found at the head of any single company. And in spite of these big names and heavy salaries there is no diminution in the quality or the quantity of the rest of the organization or of the show. Wrothe dominates the first part of the bill which presents this favorite comedian in his masterpiece, "Higgins at the Race Track." There is a laugh about every minute that Wrothe is in sight, and he is almost constantly in evidence. Wrothe is ably assisted by such clever people as Owen Martin, Ethel Marmount, Estelle Colbert, Hazel Woodbury, Jack Howard, Max Ferhman, Al Dupont and Tommy Brooks and twenty-four of the youngest and prettiest girls seen here this season. The latter part of the big bill is devoted to "Sliding" Billy Watson in his great act of "Watson at the Patent Office, Washington."

TREMONT TEMPLE—The out-of-the-ordinary entertainment is sure to attract the attention of amusement seekers, a fact attested to by the fine reception accorded "The Invisible Enemy," a five-part photoplay, which opened a week's engagement yesterday. The main theme of this production is the noble fight waged against the great white plague. The many elements that enter into the struggle with this scourge of humanity make up a story of absorbing interest, while the dramatic opportunities are utilized to the utmost to drive home the vital lesson embodied in the film. The photography is superb and the scenic possibilities afforded by Southern California enabled the producers to develop the plot amid settings of surpassing beauty. In addition to "The Invisible Enemy" there were shown at every performance Paramount Travel pictures, Burton Holmes' pictures and a Paramount-Bray cartoon.

GLOBE THEATRE—The feature act on the bill to remain all of the week is "The Six Water Lilies." The six young ladies appear to have been selected not alone for their ability as divers but for their shapeliness. Many and varied are the styles of diving that they exhibit, and their act is a daring one. On the same bill for the first half of the week is the hilarious domestic farce, "A Bit of Life." Hendricks and Padula offer an artistically presented singing and pianologue act. In addition to other numbers there were presented a new Keystone comedy and the Pathe News.

Heed the Warning
if You Have a Cough!

The deep-seated cough that does not yield to ordinary treatment may lead to distressing pulmonary troubles. Or it may bring on a chronic bronchial affection. Many persons now incapacitated might have avoided such disastrous results by timely care and efficient medical treatment.

Among the latter Eckman's Alterative has an enviable record. It is a lime-bearing preparation which is easily assimilated in most instances. Where used in connection with nourishing food and proper living, it has given widespread relief.

Its freedom from poisonous or habit-forming drugs of any nature whatsoever renders it safe to try. And its content of calcium gives it tonic value. Sold by all Liggett-Jaynes Drug Stores and leading druggists.

PLAN MARCH MAY 27 FOR PREPAREDNESS

Boston's preparedness parade will be held May 27, with at least 10,000 in line. The roster of the parade will include organized rifle clubs, business men's associations, industrial and business bodies that have been organized for preparedness purposes.

The women of the State who have organizations are now taking an active part in the work may be given a prominent place in line.

Charge Mother Taught Son to Pick Pockets

Charging that she was teaching her seventeen-year-old son to pick pockets, Mrs. Priscilla Talbot, forty-one, who gave an address on Chandler street, and her son, Harold Parcell of Newark, N. J., were arrested by Inspectors Pelton and Loughlin of Police Headquarters.

The police claim the woman has a long record as a pickpocket. Young Parcell is said to be her son by a former marriage.

They are both charged with the larceny of a purse valued at fifty cents from an unknown woman.

ETHEL BARRYMORE MAKES HIT IN 'OUR MRS. M'CHESNEY'

By FRED J. McISAAC.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Ethel Barrymore opened a fortnight's engagement last evening in "Our Mrs. McChesney," a dramatization of Edna Ferber's tales about a bustling traveling saleswoman, which have been appearing for several years in the magazines.

Miss Ferber created a strong, striking and fascinating character in Mrs. McChesney, one of those clean cut personalities that stand out among the lay figures of fiction like bas-relief.

Miss Barrymore is an unusual woman also. One sees hundreds of actresses every season, and few of them make anything but an ephemeral impression. It is possible you may not like Ethel Barrymore, her mannerisms and her peculiar voice, but you do not forget her.

The line of her endeavors has been so far away from this kind of a part, that the role of Emma McChesney, a snappy, business-like Irish-American widow, earning her own living by beating men at their own game is not one that many people would have expected her to attempt; and she certainly is not the type of woman that Miss Ferber displayed to us in her stories.

SHOWS GREAT SKILL.

Miss Barrymore, however, is a very skillful actress, with a talent for light comedy that has been concealed from us for several seasons. Her Mrs. McChesney is a winsome and human figure with the rare charm of Ethel Barrymore.

There are few actresses who could exhibit, with so little pains, the deep, true mother love of Emma for her wayward boy, nor strike so unerringly at heartstrings and at risibilities.

Several of the series of business stories that have been so popular in recent fiction have been placed upon the stage. "Potash and Perlmutter," and "Get Rich Quick Wallingford" occur to you instantly. It isn't true that Mr. Hobart has done as skillful a job of playmaking as was accomplished in those cases, but he has constructed a bright and enjoyable entertainment which is melodrama in the first act, comedy in the second, and farce in the third. There are many sparkling lines, and some of the dialogue provoked applause such as the epigram, "A woman's work is anything that she can do well."

COMPANY IS COMPETENT.

Miss Barrymore has the support of a very large and extremely competent company. W. H. St. James as "Fat Ed Meyers," the rival salesman, was particularly entertaining. Donald Gallaher, in the difficult role of young Jack McChesney, was consistent and artistic.

William Boyd, as T. A. Buck, the petticoat maker, was straightforward and likable. A. Romaine Callender, a rather unscrupulous Hebrew skirt manufacturer, was very amusing, and so was Anita Rothe as the conventional small town old maid.

Mildred Bartlett, as the chorus girl wife of young Jack, made an admirable ingenue. There are many bits in the play, and every one was well taken, but space does not permit of further detail.

"Mrs. McChesney" will be healthful and agreeable entertainment for all but the supercritical.

PARK THEATRE—The photoplay which made Geraldine Farrar, the grand opera singer, a bride, is featured this week. "Maria Rosa," in five acts, a screen adaptation of the drama of the same name was the first of the three films in which the singer appeared, and in its preparation, she met Lou-Tellegen. "Maria Rosa" is an old Spanish story in which two men are in love with the same girl who does not know which one she likes best. She is insulted by a village idler. A fistic encounter ensues and one of her admirers overcomes the loafer. That night the man who insulted her attacks her defender again and is killed. The murderer leaves the other lover's dagger beside the body and escapes. The innocent lover is convicted on the evidence of the knife and is sent to prison. The convicted man swears his innocence and pledges Maria Rosa not to marry until he either dies or is released. After he is gone the other lover returns and asks for the girl's hand. The real murderer then forges a letter, announcing that the other has passed away while in prison and Maria Rosa finally consents. It happens, however, that the innocent man has saved the warden's son from death and is pardoned. Following is the great Metro production in five powerful acts, "The Blindness of Love," featuring the brilliant dramatic star, Julius Steger.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—The reception accorded Doris Olsson last night, after an absence of almost a year, was characteristic of the audiences that attend John Craig's playhouse. Miss Olsson has always been a favorite with Boston theatregoers and her reception was enthusiastic. David Herblin, a new addition to Mr. Craig's company, also was warmly greeted. The offering this week is "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," a dramatization by Eugene Walter of one of John Fox, Jr.'s most popular novels. "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is a romantic drama, with comedy elements. The action is supposed to have taken place in the beautiful Cumberland Mountains. The scenic setting was all that could be desired. The heroine is June Tolliver, a pretty, but uneducated Southern girl. She falls in love with John Hale, who with a partner, has come into the mountains to promote mining interests and renovate the country. A feud is in progress between the Tollivers and another family. June's hand is sought by a cousin, whom she dislikes. All of these things go toward the making of an interesting play. As usual the Craig players more than came up to expectation.

Colorado Is Great For The Children

Turn the children loose in Colorado and watch them romp and play and get a healthy tan. Best of all, watch them eat—for that's one of the many good things that Colorado does—it develops the appetite.

You are literally care-free out there. If you want to go on a long "hike," you go; if you want to ride horseback, you ride; or if you prefer to just out-and-out "loaf," why, there's no one to stop you from drinking in all the sky, scenery and ozone in the whole State of Colorado; and with all this you are going to do some real sleeping—the kind that makes you start the new day right, and sends you back from Colorado feeling fit for any task—feeling as you haven't felt in years—and no wonder, you've had Nature's very own tonic.

The best part of it all is that it is so inexpensive to live out there. I have all the information about the country in my office and it is at your disposal without charge. If you can drop in we will talk it over, or if you write a postal I will send you a mighty interesting folder on Colorado, with maps and pictures, and full details about the new low price excursion tickets.

Coming Events

WILBUR THEATRE—This theatre is closed this week to make room for the elaborate preparations and rehearsals of the new musical comedy production, "A Brazilian Honeymoon," which will be offered by Messrs. Shubert next Monday evening. The advance sale of seats will open Thursday. The book is by Edgar Smith from the original of Julius Brammer and Alfred Grunwald. The music is by Winterberg and Sigmund Romberg. Heading the cast is Miss Marguerite Namara, who achieved remarkable success earlier in the season in the Franz Lehar opperetta, "Alone at Last."

COLONIAL THEATRE—It is expected that Clune's motion picture production of "Ramona," which opens Tuesday night, May 16, will cause a sensation in the world of drama. Everything needed to give a dramatic production has been done for "Ramona." Finding for its scenic foundation the beautiful mountains and valleys of Southern California, it furnishes a background that makes it enchanting from the very beginning. It is an exact reproduction of a romance that has one of the greatest circulations of any work of fiction in the United States. Quite distinctive is "Ramona" from other moving picture entertainments in that it is presented with elaborate scenic and musical embellishments. Three massive atmospheric stage settings illustrating the three periods of the story are utilized in addition to a large orchestra and a select company of instrumentalists and vocalists.

KEITH'S HAS RAPID FIRE BILL

KEITH'S THEATRE has a rapid fire bill this week with so many good things on it that it is difficult to pick the headliner. From the Hearst-Vitagraph pictures, which open the bill, to the big melodramatic final act, "The Forest Fire," there is something doing every minute.

Following the moving pictures, Albert Cutler, the billiard wizard, demonstrates some difficult shots and contributes a merry line of patter which makes his act pleasing. His skill with the cue amazed both audiences yesterday.

Marguerite Farrell, a dainty singer with some sweet songs and many changes of costumes, proved popular. Elsie Williams and company, including Ed H. Felt and Del W. Sherrard, gave an amusing comedy, "Who Was to Blame," based on the old superstition that the tipping over of a salt cellar means a quarrel.

Ed Warren and Dill Templeton, limber and acrobatic, contribute a little singing and a lot of dancing. Miss Dottie King and eight dancers from the ballet of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, give a decidedly pleasing list of dances. Miss King is graceful and expert.

The big comedy team of the bill are Kate Elinore and Sam Williams, who have an uproariously funny and original line of talk.

The Gaudschmidts and their Spanish poodles appear in a bully clown act which deserves a place right up in front of the bill.

"The Man Off the Ice Wagon," billed as vaudeville's newest discovery, looked and acted like his title, but proved he owns an excellent tenor voice. He sang "Wake Up, America" in a way that won a hearty response.

The last act is the big melodramatic production, "The Forest Fire," with Sylvia Bidwell and her company. It is a big and thrilling production with a huge scenic display, picturing the rescue of the heroine from a forest fire by the hero who drives a locomotive through the burning forest. It is a thriller.

MODERN THEATRE—Theda Bara in one of her chosen roles proved the magnet that crowded this theatre from opening hour to closing yesterday, and the balance of the week, during which she is to be shown in the photoplay, "The Eternal Sapho," undoubtedly will be a repetition of conditions in point of audiences. This William Fox production was made from a modernized screen adaptation of the famous story, and afforded Miss Bara the opportunity to display her uncommon artistry in the character of a young woman of the tenements who is taken up by a group of art students and brought by them to their studio. There they draw lots for her possession, and she poses for a statue of Sapho to the winner. He despoilation incurs in her hatred of mankind, and she sets about to prosecute the exercise of that hate. She entices a man to love her, and upon learning that he is married, she goes to his home to expose him. There she meets his child, her vicious resolve is deflected, and she departs. She marries, and upon learning his wife's history, his happiness is wrecked. She returns to the studio and learns that the other man had killed himself through despair at the los of her. Thus she realizes the destruction she has wrought, and goes forth the spirit of the eternal Sapho. Sharing the bill for the week the Paramount picture, "The Innocent Lie," was shown for the first time. Valentine Grant plays the leading part, that of a young Irish girl who comes to America to seek her brother.

BOSTON THEATRE—The world's greatest dancer, Anna Pavlowa, the incomparable, and her wonderful Ballet Russe, made their debut in motion pictures yesterday, in a superb version of "The Dumb Girl of Portici," adapted from Auber's famous opera, "Masaniello." "The Dumb Girl of Portico" is a wonderfully thrilling and interesting romance of Italy in the seventeenth century, brimful of Latin love, hate and passion. The story of the dumb girl who steals flour to help her starving people, and her many misadventures at the hands of the cruel Spanish conquerors of her much-abused country, abounds in wonderfully attractive scenes and in many stirring moments. Over 300 people appear in the various scenes, which number over nine hundred. Surrounding "The Dumb Girl of Portici," which is shown exclusively at this theatre, is a strong bill of concert vaudeville, including Cantwell and Walker, in songs and comedy; Retter Brothers; Three Vagrants, wandering street musicians, and Hartmann and Varady, the sensational Hungarian dancers, with all new creations. The picture program includes a most amusing Simian comedy, "Haunted," with two educated chimpanzees in the principal comedy roles.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—With a nicely balanced bill of artistic vaudeville features, this theatre made a potent appeal for patronage yesterday. Chief on the program was the screamingly funny sketch, "Officer 444," which Hugh Norton and Company presented. It is in a way of being a travesty on suburban life and was well appreciated by the audiences. None the less cordial was the reception accorded Grace Hazard, who presents an act entitled "Five Feet of Comic Opera." Of petite stature, she is, nevertheless, a most capable soprano singer, chic and of engaging personality. Lawrence and Edwards presented a merry military skit, "At the Pension Office," the pair enacting veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars. The two Gausch Sisters are a pair of graceful lady acrobats and Eschel Roberts is an excellent dramatic tenor with a big repertoire of popular songs. The third instalment of "The Mysteries of Myra" was shown, and the feature photoplay was Louise Lovely in "The Gilded Spider."

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE—Headed by Olga Petrova in her great screen success, "What Will People Say," the show presented last evening was pronounced by all to be one of the best this season. The vaudeville was all excellent and the latest episode of "The Iron Claw" proved most interesting. There will be an entire change of program on Thursday. Miss Ella Hall will appear in the big Universal production entitled "Jewel." The usual extra features will be added to the show for Thursday only.

DANCING ACT TOPS BILL AT ORPHEUM

ORPHEUM THEATRE—With an act that is without doubt one of the most pretentious of its kind in vaudeville, Marcus Loew has in this headliner and the perfect surrounding numbers one of the best constituted bills that he has provided for this theatre.

The headliner is Ernest Evans' Society Circus. Mr. Evans has been known as a society dancer, it having been his privilege to be engaged by many members of New York society to teach them the latest dances. And in this new act he created the most profound impression and won acclaim.

Surrounded by twelve beautiful young women dancers, every one of them clothed magnificently, and in a set that was most gorgeous, he and his associates perform the very latest dances. This act remains the entire week.

Another excellent act shown was that of Wood, Melville and Phillips, who present a really funny pot-pourri of songs and stories that kept the audience laughing throughout.

Jay Melville is best remembered for having been one of the leading members of "Hanky Panky," which played in Boston three different times. Lottie Williams, the well-known star of heavy drama and comedy in former days, reveals her well preserved artistry in a comedy playlet, "On Stony Ground."

Le Van and De Vine are a very clever pair of funsters and songsters, and the Bragaar Brothers have an acrobatic act that is swift and pleasing. Fiddler and Shelton, a pair of colored entertainers, sang and danced their way to accompaniment of generous applause.

Victoria Baker sang a group of popular songs in most engaging manner. The feature photoplay on the bill was Norma Talmadge in "The Children in the House."

SHUBERT THEATRE—"The Only Girl" moved over to this theatre last night from the Majestic and will continue its Summer run. The show, which has become a great favorite in Boston, was given a warm welcome by old friends who came again to laugh at this bright comedy of married life and to hear Victor Herbert's music and by newcomers who had been told of this satisfactory piece. The play and the music are eminently worth while as crowds found it when it was first here and by those who welcomed it on its return engagement. John Park, Wilda Bennett, Ernest Torrence and the other principals made their usual hits. All of the company can sing and act. The songs are part of the comedy itself. "The Only Girl" started off last night on a run which promises to be a record-breaker for Summer musical shows in Boston and deserves it.

"MYRA" FILM DRAWS BIG CROWDS

By HARLOW HARE.

"MYSTERIES OF MYRA"—The third episode was shown at the St. James, South End and Comique Theatres in Boston yesterday, as well as in many theatres throughout New England.

This amazing and enthralling serial now leads you right into the realm of the supernatural. One startling apparition succeeds another and fact and fancy are marvelously interwoven.

Alden, the investigator into the Black Art Society, which has so evil a portent for Myra, descends into the secret chamber where Maynard, the girl's dead father, has been wont to practice the black arts. There he sees the ghost of Maynard, which bids him warn Myra of other traps which are being set for her.

Alden has succeeded in getting a detective into the order of Devil Worshippers, but Varney, Myra's suitor, but secretly her enemy, discovers that there is a traitor among them.

By his devilish powers the Grand Master summons Myra's astral body into the Council Chamber. While she is in a trance in her home it appears before the members in cloudy and vaporous form. Alden's prayers defeat the inverted prayers of the Devil Worshippers and Myra regains consciousness.

The photography which creates all these illusions is the most extraordinary yet shown in motion pictures. The acting by Jean Sothern, Howard Esterbrook and Allen Murname is equally remarkable.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—At last Boston sees an Othello without makeup. The city had a real novelty in the presentation of Shakespeare's great tragedy, "Othello," by Edward Sterling Wright and his supporting company of twenty-five colored actors. Wright is a Bostonian by birth and for the past few years has been on the lecture platform. In order to celebrate the Tercentary he secured some of the most brilliant men and women of the negro race to present "Othello." For two weeks they played in New York city to large and enthusiastic audiences and, by request, came to Boston. The performance as a whole was meritorious. The audience was sympathetic and appreciative. The stage settings conformed to the accepted Shakespearian idea. The light effects were particularly fine and the initial performance in Boston may be set down as a success. There is room for improvement, and there will be improvement—as no players this season have showned more reverence and earnestness in their work than have these colored actors. It is clearly indicative of the latent possibilities of the race, and if there were any carping critics present last night surely they were thrilled with the achievement of the race in dramatic art. Mr. Wright's reading of the lines was clear and illuminating and his interpretation of the phases of the Moor's character showed a careful study of this wonderful work of the Bard of Avon. Miss Toney was the "Desdemona." She is possessed of considerable talent, and brings to her work a personality that is attractive and charming. She reads her lines with clearness of enunciation. John Ramsey gave a capable performance of Iago. The plotting and scheming of the crafty Venetian against the confiding Othello was most cleverly given life to by Mr. Ramsay, and it was a tribute to his work that the audience soon began to give audible expression to their recognition of his diabolical purpose. But if Iago was complimented by the audience's disfavor, his wife, Emelia, enacted by Miss Vincent Bradley (Mrs. James Allen of Boston), gained its favor.

FENWAY THEATRE—Patrons of this theatre showed unusual appreciation of the bill last night. The feature picture, "Molly Make Believe," shows Marguerite Clark in a particularly pleasing role—that of bringing sunshine into the hearts of others. The play is an adaptation of the story of the same name by Eleanor Hollowell Abbott. Though the story is essentially romantic and comic in its main theme, there are some remarkably pathetic scenes and powerful dramatic incidents, which combine to make this an exceptional photoplay. The usual musical program was rendered by the Fenway Symphony Orchestra; Thomas Malcolm Henderson seemed to please with several Scotch numbers, and Miss Margaret Milea Henry, who was held over by popular request, repeated her success of last week. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday the feature picture will show John Barrymore in another Paramount comedy entitled, "The Red Widow," an adaptation of the stage success by the same name.

Plays That Remain

COLONIAL THEATRE—The waning theatrical season brought to Boston a new, original and exceptionally enjoyable play in "The Dawn," from the pen of George D. Parker, which began its last week yesterday.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—Beginning its third week to a capacity audience is a most pleasant augury for a long and prosperous stay in our midst of "The Princess Pat."

HORN WILLING TO WAIT IN JAIL FOR TRIAL

Lieutenant Werner Horn, the German army officer under indictment in the United States District Court on the charge of unlawfully transporting dynamite in connection with the attempt to blow up the international bridge at Vanceboro, Me., in February, 1915, will not be placed on trial until his habeas corpus proceedings are threshed out in the United States Supreme Court.

Through an interpreter Horn told Judge Morton that he was willing to undergo any delay and would remain in jail in order that his case might be heard by the Supreme Court. In view of this request, the court allowed his motion.

The Supreme Court will not be able to hear the case before next October.

Chops Open Cake of Ice to Find Tiny Frozen Fish

Leander Wood, driver for the Lexington Ice Company, made a strange discovery while delivering ice to one of his customers. On chopping open a piece of ice he found a little fish inside.

The fish, of the "shiner" variety, had evidently come to the surface during the thaw in January, when ice left the surface of the pond. It had apparently remained too long, getting frozen in when the cold weather returned in February.

SAYS DANGEROUS VARICOSE VEINS CAN BE REDUCED AT HOME

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that many physicians are now prescribing.

Ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that it dissolves goitre and wens and causes them to disappear. It can always be secured at all good druggists.—Advertisement.

New York Club Women Want FRILLS AND TRIMMINGS At Federation Convention

MRS. PENRHYN STANLAWS.

New York, May 9.—Brains and beauty go hand in hand according to the views of New York's club women, who are up in arms against a movement to require the plainest kind of raiment at the coming sessions of the Biennial Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The brainiest woman in the world in out-of-date clothes is a joke.

It takes the pink bonnet and all of the trimmings that go to make the woman attractive, to make a perfectly balanced leader of thought anyway.

These are some of the ideas that are being expressed by the army of New York women in connection with some insurgent demands that the delegates who are to come to New York on May 24 shall be plainly practical.

"A great many of these women," said Mrs. Penrhyn Stanlaws, who is one of the best dressed women in New York, and one of the patronesses for the Tea Garden at the coming Fashion Exposition to be held co-incident with the Biennial Convention, "are coming to New York to study style. To ask them to come in severe, black tailored suits, with small hats and expect to find New York women dressed that way would be an unkind joke. The old idea of the strictly tailored, mannish club woman is out of date. There are no better dressed women in the world today than the club women, and it is up to them, in my estimation, to keep up their reputation."

"All the club women outside New York are not Indians," said Miss Florence Guernsey, honorary president of the New York Federation, when asked her opinion regarding the dictum of simple dressing for the delegates.

"Those women are our equals, in many cases our superiors, and they know just as well as we do what is perfectly proper to wear to the convention. To dictate to them as to what they shall wear is indelicate and uncalled for, not nice or kind, any more than it would be for a hostess to dictate to her guest what clothes she should wear. I think, the club women, as a whole, are the best dressed women in the world, and we want to see them here no matter what they wear.

They are absolutely to be trusted in the style, cut and color of their clothes. It is not necessary to warn the club women against offensive dress. Every club woman understands it, and considers it her duty to look her best on every and all occasions."

CUT "BORN IN SIN" IN INFANT BAPTISM

By International News Service.

Saratoga, May 9.—By a vote of 491 to 195, the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church refused to remove the age limit for bishops, showing that Methodism desires no change in the present law requiring the retirement of bishops at the quadrennial nearest their seventy-third birthday.

The question of infant baptism was taken up. The words "conceived and born in sin" are eliminated and the words "living member" changed to "lively" member. The revised paragraph was adopted, but on motion of Governor Frank Hanley of Indiana, it was reconsidered to take up the clause "for to such belongeth the kingdom of God." Governor Hanley would have it read "for of such are kingdom of Heaven." Final action was deferred.

CHARGE CONSUL GOT SPY HIS PASSPORT

New York, May 9.—Carl A. Luderitz, German consul at Baltimore, was indicted by the Federal Grand Jury charged with procuring a false passport for Horst von der Goltz, confessed spy.

The indictment against Consul Luderitz charges that he obtained a passport for Von der Goltz in the name of Bridgeman W. Taylor from the Secretary of State at Washington, on August 24, 1914, and that on October 2 of the same year the passport was vised by the Italian consul here. On the following day Von der Goltz sailed for Genoa, Italy, on board the Italian liner Duca d'Aosta.

Another indictment was handed down charging Wolfe von Igel, former secretary of Captain Franz von Papen, recalled German military attache; Dr. Walter T. Scheele, and "Gustave" Steinberg, alleged aide of Franz von Rintelen, German agent, with conspiring to falsify a ship's manifest in sending a cargo of lubricating oil to Germany.

The indictment states that the lubricant oil was manufactured at the plant of the New Jersey Agriculture Chemical Company of Hoboken, N. J., and that Dr. Scheele, as head of the concern, arranged for the shipment of 720 bags of the oil, chemically reduced to powder and billed as fertilizer, on the steamship Esrom of the Interocean Transportation Company of America, to Germany, via Sweden.

ARRESTED TRYING TO SEIZE HIS CHILD

Joseph Duverger of Essex street, Lynn, and his brother-in-law, Frank Sitrey, were arrested after a struggle in the street in Lynn, for the possession of Duverger's two-year-old son.

Duverger is said to have attempted to wrest the child from the arms of its mother, Mrs. Annie Duverger, as she was entering the theatre. Mrs. Donna Devoll and Mrs. Nellie Hallissey, companions of Mrs. Duverger, screamed so loudly that a big crowd was attracted.

Policeman James Gaffney, on duty at the theatre, placed both men under arrest and sent both to the Sutton-street station, where they were quickly admitted to bail. The Duvergers have been separated only a week and the father has been anxious to obtain custody of his son.

DENIES U-BOATS SEEN NEAR U. S.

CALLS KAISER'S NEW OFFENSIVE AT VERDUN COMPLETE FAILURE

By C. F. BERTELLI,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, May 9.—The German offensive on both banks of the Meuse has once more resulted in complete failure. A whole corps of fresh troops hastily summoned by the Crown Prince to reinforce the one which had already fought at Verdun, merely succeeded in increasing the tremendous casualties inflicted by the terrific French artillery fire.

The Germans launched an infantry attack, expecting to break the stubborn French resistance. Wave upon wave of gray-coated men, numbering 25,000, advanced and were blown to pieces by the impassable curtain of fire from the French 75s supported by heavy guns in the rear.

How many lie dead on neutral ground between the opposing trenches is now impossible to estimate, but it is certain that the victims lost their lives in an utterly useless attempt.

DRIVE GERMANS BACK.

The net result of this new outbreak of the German offensive is merely a slight widening of the "field of death," that narrow strip of ground separating the French and German positions.

Not only were the Crown Prince's troops unable to occupy the front line trenches, which had been voluntarily evacuated in the early part of the battle as untenable under the hurricane of shells, but the Verdun heroes succeeded in dislodging the Germans from a few advanced positions which they had entered.

It is especially to the northwest of Hill No. 304 that the battle has attained its climax. Here the Germans have attacked five times.

When finally the remaining troops managed to obtain a foothold in this section of the French positions, the French infantry counter attacks with the bayonet and drove them out the bayonet drove them out everywhere except in small communicating trenches of the outpoints.

FIGHT WITH FISTS.

Bayonets, knives, rifle butts and fists were equally good weapons for the Verdun defenders who, one and all had sworn to die rather than give way.

"The Germans will not pass," said General Petain on passing the immediate command of the Verdun section on to his successor, General Nivelle.

But it would be folly to imagine that the Crown Prince will be satisfied with the failure of his fourth attempt to take the historic French fortress. Each time his artillery preparation is characterized by greater intensity and duration.

More than 1,000,000 shells have been exploded along the French front line in the past forty-eight hours, and the fact that more than 40,000 troops were employed shows that the attack was not a mere feint to obscure other preparations, but was a real and desperate attempt to attain a big success, regardless of the cost of lives.

SAY GERMANS LOSE 300,000.

The number of French casualties is not to be compared with the German losses. When the figures are published the awful truth will be revealed to the world that nearly 300,000 Germans have fallen dead or wounded or been taken prisoners during the eleven weeks of the great battle.

England to Conceal Her Loss in War

London, May 9.

PREMIER ASQUITH announced in the House of Commons that the government has abandoned the usual practice of publishing periodically the figures covering British casualties.

He explained that the figures hereafter would be withheld "for military reasons."

Part of Hill No. 304 Taken, Says Berlin

By International News Service.

London, May 9.—A German official communication announces the capture by Pomeranian troops of the entire system of trenches on the northern slopes of Hill No. 304, northwest of Verdun. The statement claims the German forces now hold the crest of the height.

The capture of Hill 304 gives the German artillery a clear sweep against the Paris-Verdun Railway, some four miles to the southward, and imperils the French positions at Dead Man's Hill, two miles to the east.

The German army aims at forcing a French retirement from the Dead Man region by a turning movement, furious frontal attacks having failed to achieve the desired object.

Despite reports from Paris of heavy losses having been inflicted upon the Germans, the official statement from Berlin claims that while the operations on the slopes of Hill 304 were difficult in the extreme, they were carried out with only moderate losses. On the contrary the French are said to have suffered heavily.

It is considered unfortunate here that the result of the first general action in which General Neville took command at Verdun should be unfavorable to the French.

The German army at Verdun numbers about 300,000 men, according to the German statement. This communication states that the German forces are about half the number of French defenders, who, during the battle, have employed at least fifty-one divisions. A division numbers about 12,000 men.

Washburn Describes Fighting at Verdun

By STANLEY WASHBURN,
Special to International News Service and London Times.

Verdun, France, May 9.—In a certain place, carefully sheltered from the view of the Germans, is a dugout, and through the loophole peered one of the highest powered telescopes it has ever been my privilege to look through. One could see many of the now famous points synonymous with the defence of Verdun.

Down in the valley of the Meuse lay a town whence every few minutes came the distant reverberation of a bursting shell. One can see volcanoes of dust and black smoke shoot up here and there.

Verdun itself is apparently hidden from direct vision of the Germans, but the range has been corrected by aeroplanes. The French absolutely dominate the air at Verdun. I saw dozens of French aeroplanes sailing hither and thither at will, but I did not see a single German machine during the entire day.

VILLAGE IS DESOLATE.

The country is rolling in all directions, and for the most part barren of shelter, with the exception of the questionable shelter that the small villages afford. We can see the shells bursting in and about the village of Fleury, already desolate from the German shell fire. A little to the north lie the ruins of Vaux.

West of Vaux stands the sullen ridge of Douaumont fort, its name famous throughout the world as the scene of some of the fiercest fighting this war has produced. To the north lies the valley of the Meuse, in the Spring sunshine looking like a river of peace.

A bit to the west is Mort Homme, the bloody slope which cost the lives of thousands of Germans in their frantic efforts to gain its summit.

In any direction one sees a half dozen shells bursting, now a shrapnel shell. A second later, with a crash like a volcano, a shell aimed at Verdun tears up half an acre of the slope north of the town.

FRENCH GUNNERS EXCEL.

The Germans are sending in large numbers of their 380's. Under our eyes, though he see them not, are neatly tucked away I know not how many 75's and bigger guns.

Every conspicuous object now in the German hands has long since been definitely located, and the range worked out to a nicety. I suppose there is hardly a tree or a cottage within miles of the French guns which cannot be wiped out of existence in less than a minute if it pleases the commander of the artillery to give the word.

MASARYK CASE HOPEFUL, SAYS MUNSTERBURG

The American friends of Miss Alice Masaryk, the Austrian teacher who has been reported as either executed or facing execution in that country, are today taking fresh hope for her safety in a statement just issued by Professor Hugo Munsterburg of Harvard.

As a result of the latter's assertions, it is now generally believed that Miss Masaryk has thus far, at least, escaped a firing squad.

The professor's statement is contained in a letter which he has sent a member of the Women's Peace Party.

The professor, who has interested himself in the Masaryk case, writes that the Austrian embassy on sending a wireless in regard to the matter to Vienna, received this reply:

"Preliminary trial against Alice Masaryk is pending. All other rumors without foundation."

Professor Munsterburg adds that the Austrian embasssy has informed him personally that, according to the procedure of the Austrian courts, a preliminary trial has only the character of an investigation.

"Hence," he says, "it may be that the offence of which she is suspected is not at all of a specially serious matter."

As evidence that the case will be treated by the Austrian government with "objectivity and fairness," Professor Munsterburg asserts that Miss Masaryk has been promoted to a higher teaching position since her father fled from Austria, "going to Austria's enemies to continue his efforts to separate Bohemia from Austria and to bring it under the vassalage of Russia."

"Professor Masaryk has done to Austria what Casement has done to England," the professor continues, "and yet after his fleeing to England the Austrian government has nevertheless promoted his daughter."

GAVE THE CREDIT TO NEW MEDICINE

Roxbury Citizen Suffered with Indigestion Until He Fell on the Floor in Faint.

The symptoms of stomach disorders may take so many forms that frequently people mistake this condition for organic diseases. Herein lies the chief danger of this complaint. Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, is proving to be invaluable in relieving such conditions. That this is just what Plant Juice is doing is being demonstrated every day by the numerous testimonials received from every city where it has been introduced.

Since Plant Juice has ben introduced in Boston scores of local people have testified to the benefits received. Recently the signed statement of Mr. James E. Fowler, who lives at No. 48 Spring road, West Roxbury, Mass., was received. He said:

"For over four years I had suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia and was so bad at times that I would fall on the floor in a dead faint. My stomach was so weak I could not eat any breakfast and could not keep anything in my stomach as it would cause me to suffer so from gas. Finally I got in such a condition that I was taken to the hospital and told that I was in a very critical state from stomach trouble. I was so restless and nervous I could not get any sleep and after I came out of the hospital a friend told me of Plant Juice. I began to take it and got so much relief that I have continued its use and it has put my stomach in fine condition; I can sleep well and eat anything I want and digest it. It has brought my health and strength back to me against and made me a well man. I cannot praise Plant Juice too highly, as it has been a godsend to my home."

Plant Juice acts like magic in stomach trouble, gas, fermentation, heavy, distressed feeling after meals and on retiring. It attacks and destroys all poisons in the blood, corrects diseased conditions of the liver and kidneys and restores them to normal condition. It banishes rheumatism from the blood.

The Plant Juice Man is in the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

YOU'LL GET RID OF BLACKHEADS SURE

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get about two ounces of plain powdered neroxin from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get the blackheads out after they become hard. The powdered neroxin and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.—Advertisement.

This Frees Your Skin from Hair or Fuzz

(Toilet Tips)

The method here suggested for the removal of superfluous hair is quick and certain and unless the growth is extremely stubborn, a single application does the work. Make a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water; apply this to the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To avoid disappointment, be sure your druggist sells you delatone.—Advertisement.

WARSHIPS TO AID CELEBRATION OF NAVY DAY

Plans for the celebration of Navy Day at the Charlestown Navy Yard on Saturday are practically complete and the program is not only entertaining but instructive.

Every type of warship except the super-dreadnought will be on exhibition, and an enormous throng is expected to take advantage of the opportunity to inspect the workings of Uncle Sam's navy. The feature of the program will be the appearance of the new submarine L-1, which has recently been received from the Fore River Shipbuilding Company. The submarine will give two exhibitions, morning and afternoon.

Aeroplane flights will be made, and Loring Swazey, a member of the power boat reserve, will give an exhibition of tracing a submarine. There will also be operation of field radio sets on the recreation field, navy divers will work off the ends of the piers, the torpedo boat destroyer O'Brien will fire a torpedo along the surface of the water and recover it, and the destroyer Henley will give an exhibition of "Man Overboard!"

Governor McCall and Mayor Curley will be present, and the citizens of Charlestown are decorating the buildings and houses in honor of the occasion. The proceeds will go to the Naval Relief Society, of which Admiral Dewey is president, and with which Major Henry L. Higginson and George von L. Meyer are connected.

Italians Are Preparing for Big Offensive

Rome, May 9.—An Italian advance up the Adige valley against Trent and a renewal of the attack against the Austrian stronghold of Goritz are expected to signal the resumption of hostilities on a large scale within a short time.

Mountain roads in the Tyrol district, impassable for several weeks because of melting snow, are becoming firm under the Summer's sun. The movement of artillery into the Adige District in the vicinity of Roverto, where the Italian advance was held up last Fall, is now possible. For the past fortnight the artillery exchanges on the Tyrol frontier have been increasing in intensity, as if presaging the beginning of important infantry actions.

The Austrians are again concentrating large bodies of troops on the Isonzo front in anticipation of an Italian attack. Several brigades which have been in action on the Russian front in southeastern Galicia have appeared in the region of Tolmino.

BRITISH ARMY BARS 'AMERICAN LEGION'

Toronto, Ont., May 9.—Americans who have enlisted for army service in Europe are denied the use of the name "American Legion," under instructions received here from the Dominion government authorities at Ottawa. This action was taken, it was learned, in response to a request by the United States government to the British authorities.

No More Orders for Munitions, Predicts Fish

What is believed to be the last order of munitions for the allies is now being rushed to completion at the Lynn plant of the General Electric Company, Walter C. Fish, manager of the plant, stated that there are no indications that his plant or any other will receive any more orders.

Asked if this was significant of peace, he replied that it was not necessarily. He said that the foreign powers had now obtained the necessary equipment for making their own munitions and would no longer be dependent upon the American manufacturers.

With regard to the rumor in circulation in Lynn to the effect that 2,500 employes would be out of work when the order which the plant is now turning out for Russia is completed, Mr. Fish said that he expects to be able to retain the majority of his employes.

U-BOAT RELEASES CAPTURED BARK

Berlin, May 9.—A German submarine on April 22 held up the Norwegian bark Pestalozzi, which was then in charge of a British prize crew; made prisoners of the prize crew, and after an examination released the bark to proceed to its destination.

This incident occurred 160 miles west of the Hebrides. A British cruiser had placed a prize crew aboard, with instructions to take the Pestalozzi to Kirkwall. She was bound from Malmo for Argentina with cement.

The submarine brought a British officer and a petty officer to Germany. It left four sailors to continue the voyage as involuntary passengers to Argentina.

GOODRICH SAFETY TREAD

(Reprinted from Goodrich BALANCED TIRE Campaign of July and Aug., 1915)

Built like—
—"The Deacon's One-Hoss Shay"

"THE best Pneumatic Tire is only as strong as its weakest part.

Strengthening its strongest parts is as useless as putting a fifth Wheel on a Wagon.

Yet this is often done to provide "Selling-feature" and "Talking Point."

The weakest part of every Pneumatic Tire is its Walls or Sides, not its Tread,—its Cotton Fabric or "Stocking," not its Rubber "Sole."

No price would be too high to pay for a material that, replacing Cotton in the Walls of Pneumatic Tires, would last as long as the Goodrich Rubber Tread could be made to wear.

Neither Silk, nor Linen, nor any other known Fabric, yet discovered is so good, for this purpose, as Cotton,—and choice long-fibred Cotton is the best material than money can buy for Tire Fabric.

• •

"WE use nothing less in Goodrich Tires, and test every foot of it up to 200 lbs. to the Square Inch, before we percolate it with the most adhesive Rubber Compound ever made for this purpose.

We then shape this rubberized Long-Fibred Fabric into Tires, with scrupulous care to have the tension on each square inch of fabric precisely the same.

That tension is controlled by a machine as sensitive as the eye, and infinitely more precise than the handwork of the most skilled Operative could make it.

To do this work we have the most highly trained men in the Rubber Industry,—trained in the Precision that practice and our 45-year EXPERIENCE make perfect.

• •

"NO Tire Manufacturer, if he received a price of $200 per Tire, could put better Fabric into the Walls of his Tires, use greater care, more sensitively adjusted Tension devices, or more adhesive Rubber between each layer of fabric.

Because, we know the vital importance of THE BEST in this part of the Tire, and use it there unsparingly.

Goodrich "Fair-List" Prices

BLACK SAFETY TREADS
30 x 3	Ford Sizes	$10.40
30 x 3½	Ford Sizes	$13.40
32 x 3½		$15.45
33 x 4		$22.00
34 x 4		$22.40
36 x 4½		$31.60
37 x 5		$37.35
38 x 5½		$50.60

But,—notwithstanding all this,—the FABRIC is the part of the Tire which goes first.

Because the sides of the Tire do most of the work in running,—bending and stretching a million times an hour, in scores of different directions.

This bending of the sides causes Friction between the layers of Canvas working against each other,—Friction causes Heat—the Heat over-cures and dries out the Rubber Adhesive between layers, which then separate from each other, in spots, the threads weakening or wearing out chafing against each other.

Then you have, in due time, the incipient blow-out, or other form of Tire-Death.

• •

"PUT more layers of Fabric than we do in the walls, to strengthen them, and the friction increases, with faster deterioration of the Rubber through the greater heat engendered.

Put fewer layers, and the walls would not be strong enough to carry the load of the Car.

So there you are—Mr. Tire-User!

Why put MORE layers of Fabric in the Walls of the Tire than will properly carry the load, when each additional layer is an additional developer of that FRICTION-HEAT which is to Tires what Old Age is to Man?

• •

"THAT is the reason we build (and have built for more than a year), in the Goodrich Tire, a carefully BALANCED Tire, emulating the famous example of "The Deacon's One-Hoss Shay" in which "the Sills were just as strong as the Thills and the Thills as strong as the floor."

The Maximum Fabric efficiency and THEN,—the rest of the Tire built up to that.

Result,—

—The most RESILIENT Tire that can be made with Fabric Walls,—at the fairest price per Mile of performance.

Why pay more for any Tire?

Yanks Take Final, 4-0

Sox Held to Three Hits

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

THERE is a well established fact that to win in baseball you must hit the ball. Of course, there are times when a game could be won on no hits, but they come so seldom it isn't worth while talking about them, only as they appear to be suggested by the work of the World's Champions.

These monarchs of all they survey in the world of baseball evidently tried to get a game from New York via the Hitless Wonders Route—and failed.

Three hits, one a scratch, was all they could do off Mogridge, who started and finished the game, proving the wisdom of Bill's choice, and the Yankees gathered their third game in a row by a 4-0 score.

Vean Gregg was Boss Bill's selection and he went six innings, being taken out for a pinch-hitter, who didn't pinch hit, and Matty McHale finished up.

The New Yorkers got two runs off Gregg on bunching hits, but the two scored off McHale were gifts of Scott, who had a poor day, failing to pick up the ball once and later didn't seem to be willing to part with it after he got it in his hands. These two errors sent two runs over.

SOX'S LONE CHOICE.

The sixth was where the World Beaters had a chance and didn't come through. Up to that time only one man had seen what first base looked like; so far as a hit was considered.

Larry Gardner, in the second, with two men out, hit a bounder that just touched Mogridge's gloved hand hard enough to make it safe; the trick spoiled a play for Gedeon. Larry was later thrown out trying to steal. Agnew, in the third, drew the only base on balls issued by Mogridge and was forced by Gregg.

So it can be seen it was pretty hard going for the boys from Boston. In the sixth, however, there was a chance, for Agnew dropped a Texas Leaguer into right field for a safe one and Sam ran around to third.

AGNEW LOOKED OUT.

Gilhooley cut the ball loose and it looked as if Baker had tagged Agnew, for Sam bounced off "Home Run" and sprawled out over the bag. The decision was safe; so with men on third and first with one out and Janvrin up there was hope.

Janvrin flied to Pipp and Cady hit the first ball pitched to Magee for the third out. Not much of a rally, but all there was to it for the game so far as Boston was concerned.

It was a case of out in order for the balance of the contest.

SPEAKER HERE AS ENEMY

Famed "$50,000 Beauty" Assured Warm Welcome by Boston Fandom at Fenway Park.

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

HAVING seen all the Eastern clubs play the World Beaters at Fenway Park, the fans of Boston and New England will now have a chance to see what there is doing in the way of talent in the Western clubs.

This is Speaker Day and the Cleveland club, leaders of the American League, come here for a series.

The rise of this club from a last place proposition to a leader is the talk of the baseball world and there is naturally considerable interest in this city to see the team in action against the champions, who for the past two weeks have failed to hit their stride.

The eastern trip of the World's Champions was a distinct disappointment to the fans here. The return to the home grounds was expected to produce something in the way of hitting. This idea was built upon the opportunity for morning practice. The club has not hit and their pitchers have been hit, so the loss of three games in a row to the Yankees was to be expected.

The games with Cleveland will tell a story as the games with the New Yorkers did. If the team that won the biggest title in the land of baseball is to climb to a point where it will be in place to defend its title it will have to get busy pretty soon.

Cleveland is as good a club as any to get started with and the presence of Tris Speaker in a rival uniform will act as a magnet to draw the crowd for the game and the concert and exercises attendant upon such a day as Speaker Day.

The Shriners will be present and there are some surprises in store.

Three Belts by Smith Topple Cobb & Co.

Cleveland, May 8.—Elmer Smith, former idol of Waterbury, Ct., fandom, had a great day at bat, the Indians defeating the Tigers, 3-1. It was the Redskins' eighth consecutive victory.

Smith's first drive was a double that hit the right-field screen. His second was a single and he made the circuit on a sacrifice and Wambsganss' single.

In the eighth Smith came up with two on and two out and doubled to right, scoring both men. Bagby was practically invincible except in the third frame. The score:

Hon. Walter Is Well Whaled by Athletics

Philadelphia, May 9.—The Athletics pulled out of last place—almost—at the expense of Walter Johnson, landing on practically even terms with the Browns, by defeating the Senators, 4-2. Incidentally, they knocked Johnson out of the box.

Washington made five errors, but none figured in the scoring. Witt raked the mighty pitcher for two doubles and a single, while Myers, another recruit, held the Senators to four hits.

Thompson misjudged Barber's fly in the second and it went for a home run, Rondeau scoring ahead of him. The score:

Butler-Mack at Arena

WALTER BUTLER of Revere, and Frankie Mack of Beachmont, two of the most promising boxers of their weight in New England, heavy lightweights or light welterweights, class them as one will, clash in the main muss at the Arena tonght.

Butler and Mack are well matched. Boys together at Beachmont, they were brought out by the same handler, Charley Madden. Mack was the first to obtain prominence in pugdom. Frankie was fighting windups when Walter was operating in the smaller New England towns.

Still, no gloveman in any district fought oftener or showed to better advantage than Butler did the past Winter season. Working on an average of twice a week, never sidestepping any of the foes plucked for him, he bunched as many victories from October last, right through until February 1 as "Battling" Levinsky, the sports' sure-enough busy member.

If Greater Boston is to have a boy around the 138-140-pound notch able to make it interesting for the topliners when they begin coming to town it should be the victor of tonight's set-to.

Mack already owns an established reputation; Butler is as good a prospect as the Queensbury game owns.

Butler and Mack are to travel the usual twelve rounds and it is pretty well understood they will come in at catchweights. V

I am an auto racer.

I win races by out-daring the other fellow.

Once my nerve is gone I'll be a "has-been."

That's why "Helmar" Turkish Cigarettes are my only smoke. I know "Helmar" is mild and 100 per cent pure.

And good!—"Helmar" has got 'em all beaten by laps.

Braves En Route West

Flay N. Y. in Farewell

NEW YORK, May 9.—Boston's highfalutin' Braves, after making it unanimous over Jawn McGraw's tail-end crew by hooking on to yesterday's matinee at the Polo Grounds, 6-2, are traveling Westward today.

Chicago is the destination of the Stallings party, which is honk-honking along within half a game of first place.

After bagging two close frolics from the Giants the Braves showed up the cellar champions yesterday. Pat Ragan, a Brooklyn discard, started his first game of the season for the Bostonians.

Ragan held our boys, who can hit, if they cannot do much of anything else, to five blows; issued but two bits of free transportation and busted out the first timely drive for his side.

With two on and two out in the second canto McGraw wigwagged to Palmero, his Cuban hurler, to walk Gowdy. Palmero did as ordered and grinned when Ragan went up. Pat picked the second one that came along, driving it safely to right and sending over the first two runs of the day.

Thereafter it was easy sailing for the Braves. The Giants counted once in their half of the second, but in the third Evers opened by walking, and, after Collins forced him, Sherwood Magee's understudy skedaddled home ahead of Fitzpatrick, when "Pepper" busted one to deep right-centre for the circuit. Smith's double and Snodgrass' single gave an additional tally in the session.

To Find Friends When We Have No Need of Them, and to Want Them When We Have, Are Both Alike Easy and Common

The American's Magazine and Fiction Page

Want Earnestly, if You'd Win

So Says Ruth Welsh, Who Did and Who Made Her First Appearance on the Stage in a Prima Donna Role as a Result

Miss Ruth Welsh, prima donna in "The Princess Pat," at the Park Square Theatre.

"YOU can get what you want if you want it earnestly enough," is the slogan of Ruth Welsh, the youthful prima donna of "The Princess Pat," now playing at the Park Square Theatre. This motto has stood her in good stead in her efforts at recognition; how well, may be understood, when it is known that this is the first professional role she has sung, and that it is barely six weeks since she left the fireside to chance the fates. And now she occupies one of the most coveted positions in her profession.

"I really am provoked at hearing my friends say to me ever so often that I am lucky," says Miss Welsh. "There may be such a thing as luck, but I do not recognize it. For every atom of so-called good luck showered upon the prominent and prosperous the reception of it may be credited to energy and proper management of resources, together with the natural confidence all should possess. You can get what you want if you want it earnestly enough.

"Yes, I believe in that axiom most religiously, for I have proved its efficacy in my own experience. Of course, I will admit that the reason so few young women get what they want is because they haven't a definite opinion of what that want really is, or, if they have an inkling of what they desire, have not the vertebrae or pertinacity to persevere.

"When I finished my musical studies I was the recipient of oceans of advice from my well-meaning friends. They contemplated what had been the experience of others and forecasted for me a long and dreary assailment of the castlements of fame before I would even get a glimpse of the interior of the portal. But all the time I was different minded. I resolved to make a more speedy entry to the precious realms of prominence in my own way. I had made up my mind to be a successful singer to recompense me for the hard work and money expended upon my preparation for a career.

"Answering this resolve, I went to New York, the fountain head of the singing cult of America. Then I sought out America's greatest composer, Victor Herbert. I impressed him with my determination, persuaded him to hear me sing, and he responded by influencing Mr. Cort to give me the best position at his disposal. I knew what I wanted, and I wanted it as hard as I possibly could. Hence, I got it. And of course I am as happy as can be."

Anecdotes of the Famous

SIR ARCHIBALD GEIKIE, former President of the Royal Society, is famous not only as an eminent geologist, but also as a raconteur, as all will be aware who have read his entertaining "Scottish Reminiscences."

It is Sir Archibald who tells the story of the Highlander who had been to Glasgow and seen that wonderful invention, the telegraph. "What's it like?" his neighbours asked him. "If I trod on ma collie-dog's tail in Oban," said Jock, "and it squeaked in Tobermory, that would be telegraph."

Another of his stories is that of the minister's prodigal son, who returned home one evening and found his father giving a Presbyterian dinner. "Where have you been, sir?" asked the father, sternly. "In hell," quoth the son. "Ah, and what did you find there?" "Much the same as I find here. I couldna see the fire for meenisters."

Sir Archibald's stories of the humours of Scottish Sabbath-keeping are, perhaps, among his best. There is one concerning a nurse who was overheard stilling a child in this fashion: "Whist! whist! my bonnie lamb; it's the Sawbbath or I wud whustle ye a sang, but I will sing ye a paraphrase."

Sir Archibald tells how Donald was one Sabbath hammering away on the bottom of his barrow, when his wife came to the door. "Mon," she said, "you're making much clatter. What wull the neebors say?" "Never mind the neebors," said the busy Donald. "A mun get ma barra mendit." "Oh, but Donal', it's vera rang ta wurk on Sawbbath," expostulated his wife. "Ye ought ta use screws."

Sir Archibald once suggested that the questions put by school examiners were not always judiciously worded, and gave as an example the examiner who asked, "If Alfred the Great were alive now, what part of our political system would he be likely to take most interest in?" "Please, sir," replied a harassed pupil, "if Alfred the Great were alive now he'd be so old he wouldn't take any interest in anything."

And one may conclude with the holiday story which Sir Archibald tells of a Scotsman who, much against his own judgment, was persuaded to take a holiday. He went to Egypt and visited the Pyramids. After gazing for some time at the Great Pyramid he muttered, "Mon, what a lot of mason work not to be bringing in ony rent!"

* * *

Lord Fisher, the famous English admiral, tells an amusing experience he once had when on a tour of inspection in a naval dockyard. He came across a workman gently hammering a piece of iron outside one of the workshops.

"Are the Lords of the Admiralty about here?" asked Lord Fisher.

"No fear, mate," answered the man, who did not recognize the somewhat shabbily-dressed stranger. "I'm 'ere doin' crow for 'em."

"Doing crow?" echoed his lordship. "What's that?"

"Don't yer know? Why, inside of this 'ere shed my mates is a-takin' of it easy! When I sees someone that don't matter comin' I knocks soft, like now! But when I sees old Jacky Fisher, I knocks like blazes, and when old Jacky pokes 'is nose inside they're workin' like blazes, too. See?"

"Old Jacky" did see, and there was no more "doing crow" in that particular dockyard from that day forward.

It's Easy to Peel Off All Your Freckles

The contrast between the freckles and the clear skin usually is so great that no bleach can be more than partially successful in obliterating the disfigurements. Ordinary mercolized wax is far better; it literally peels off the freckles. Get an ounce of it at the nearest drugstore and tonight spread on enough to completely cover your face; remove in the morning with warm water. Repeat daily until every freckle has disappeared.

Rough, blotchy, pimpled skin, also common at this season, may be entirely gotten rid of by this same method, without discomfort or inconvenience. The effort is decidedly worth while, the new complexion obtained being so clear, smooth and youthful.

If bothered with wrinkles, bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is the most effective and quickest-acting wrinkle treatment known.—Advertisement.

Their Married Life

Helen Goes on an Outing with Warren and Part of the Day, Anyway, Is Perfect

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

"WE ought to have a perfect time," said Helen, watching the flying landscape and settling down closer in the seat of the car.

"Yes, and the kid will be tickled with the flowers," said Warren, grinning amiably. "I'm glad you thought of that."

"Girls are so thrilled about receiving flowers," said Helen. "I remember how I was at seventeen."

Helen and Warren were on their way to see a school play. One of Warren's nieces was at boarding school out in the hills and had sent them an invitation to attend an annual play. For a wonder Warren had been quite taken with the idea. Helen was vaguely surprised, as he so seldom had time for anything of the kind, but when the invitation had come he had said immediately that they must go.

"We'll run out in the car," he had said suddenly.

"Oh, then it isn't true," said Helen quickly, and then stopped.

"What isn't true?"

"That we are going to sell the car?"

"Now, where did you hear that?"

"Mrs. Davenport mentioned it at Louise's luncheon."

"And I suppose you have been making yourself miserable over it," Warren had continued.

"Well, Warren, I did think that if you had decided anything of the kind that I should have been told."

"Well, we're not going to sell the car, make your mind easy on that score."

"What did Mrs. Davenport mean?"

"Well, business was poor a couple of months back and I did think I might raise some ready cash on the car. I spoke to Davenport about it, but I found that I couldn't get nearly what it was worth. I didn't tell you because I didn't want to worry you about it before I found out for sure."

A PERFECT DAY

"And you want to go up in it Saturday?"

"Sure I think that's a great plan unless it rains."

And so they had actually started in the car, Helen jubilant and Warren in one of his best humors.

The day was perfect and the car ran smoothly. They had left rather late in the afternoon as Warren had taken time to finish some business letters, but they had planned to reach the place in plenty of time to dress for dinner. Warren seldom spoke when he was driving, and Helen was silent too. The beauty of the day made her disinclined for talking and the country was looking its best. At a small town as they were driving through a tire blew out. Helen stole a glance at Warren's face, and for a wonder found him grinning.

"Tough luck," he remarked, "well, we'll have it fixed in a jiffy." They drew up to the curb and Helen jumped out and went into the little dry goods store that boasted the name of Perkins over its awning. She smiled a little as she watched Warren from the window. He had gone to work and had the shoe off already.

The rest of the drive was accomplished safely and they drove up to the low wooden structure, where they engaged rooms, or where Natalie had engaged rooms for them. Everything was pleasant and they went upstairs immediately to a large square room. The bed looked comfortable, and Warren walked around and examined things closely as was his wont.

"Things look great, eh?"

"Yes, everything is certainly comfortable, dear."

"Well, it's after six; shall we dress right away? I feel as if a bath would make a good impression on me."

"You take your bath and I'll get your things out," said Helen, beginning to unpack the traveling bags.

Things were progressing beautifully. She was beginning to feel quite girlishly excited over the prospect of being the guest of honor and having one's niece take a prominent part in a play. She had met Natalie only once and remembered her as a slim little thing with a wide laughing mouth and beautiful eyes.

Warren finished dressing and urged her to hurry.

"We want some time to look around before the show starts," he said.

Helen hastened as much as possible and just as she was ready to come out she heard Warren utter a savage exclamation.

TROUBLE AT LAST

"What is it dear?" she called.

"What is it?" repeated Warren sarcastically. "Well, you've made a pretty mess of things."

Helen wondered what she had forgotten to pack and hurried out to him with eyes filled with anxiety. "What's the matter, Warren?"

"Matter? Matter enough. Do you know what you've done? You've brought my old dress coat."

"Why, Warren, that isn't possible."

"Why isn't it? Here it is, you can see for yourself. Now, what's going to be done?"

Helen was genuinely sorry for Warren. She knew that he boyishly wanted to make a good impression that evening and she was furious with herself for the mistake.

"I thought you had put that coat away," she said penitently. "I am so sorry, dear. I wouldn't have done it for worlds."

Helen might have said that it was his own fault for not remembering to take care of it as he said he would. She had offered to do it herself, but he had told her to leave it alone. Well, things might be worse. Warren must make the best of it.

"It won't be noticed, dear," she offered consolingly.

"Won't be noticed. That's all you know about it," said Warren, getting into the coat. "I've a good mind not to go at all." And he went angrily out of the room.

Girl Workers Who Win Out

The Teacher and Her Final Success.

By JANE M'LEAN.

MISS SMITH taught school. There was nothing remarkable about that fact, nor was there anything at all extraordinary about Miss Smith herself. She did not look upon her work in the light of a profession, nor of a career carefully chosen and painstakingly adhered to.

She was just one of a thousand other school teachers. She had never heard of special branches, or, if she had, it never occurred to her to think whether or not she was suited to her work. She simply taught school because her education in the normal college made it possible.

From the time that she was a small girl her mother had always said with a gratified smile that they were making a teacher out of Maud.

"Her father and I never had the chance, but we want Maud to have a real education."

And so Maud had conscientiously worked her way through the high school and normal, and was now a regular teacher. She taught arithmetic, geography, history, spelling, reading and nature study. She had no knack of making these subjects of peculiar interest to the children who met in her room every day.

She simply plodded carefully along, preparing her lessons carefully day by day—bored, if she had stopped to think of it at all, and yet she considered herself a worker.

However, there was just one thing that made Miss Smith different from some of the other teachers. She loved children. She liked their shy attempts at friendship, she liked it when they brought their small problems for her to solve, and strange to say, discipline in Miss Smith's room was not so necessary as it was elsewhere.

It all came about through Johnny Deering, who was the acknowledged bad boy of the school. Teachers dreaded him, and when it finally came time to hand him over to Miss Smith, Miss Bascom, of the grade below, gave him up with a sigh of relief at the knowledge that a year of torment was happily over.

Johnny knew all the dodges that are usually employed to make teachers furious. He knew how to aim spit balls, and how to draw atrocious pictures of teacher in heavy chalk on the blackboard. But Miss Smith never struck his fingers with a ruler, nor did she keep him in after school. She just laughed at the awful pictures and pretended not to notice when Johnny aimed balls across the room. And when Johnny discovered that he was not making such a hit, he didn't find it as much fun as he had under fidgety, fretful Miss Bascom.

Other teachers asked Miss Smith how she endured life with Johnny Deering, and Miss Smith always made some laughing rejoinder. Everyone marvelled, and life continued to go on for Miss Smith in quite the same way as usual, only she was really interested in Johnny Deering. She wanted to make him like her.

One day she encountered Johnny's eyes regarding her interestedly as she explained a point in nature study, and their absorbed interest made her think of a story that she promptly told, to illustrate her point.

She forgot herself and told the story well, the children hung on her words, and for the first time in her life she was flushed and happy. The principal had come quietly into the room as she spoke, and coming up to her desk after school he said evenly:

"I think you have quite a knack with children, Miss Smith. I think I shall put you in charge of the children's special, you are certainly qualified."

Miss Smith's usually quiet hands tightened in her lap, but her cup of happiness was not quite empty. Johnny Deering slid softly up to her desk and held out a rough little hand impulsively.

"Say, you're a peach," he said shyly. "I like you." And Miss Smith at last knew what it meant to have a real career.

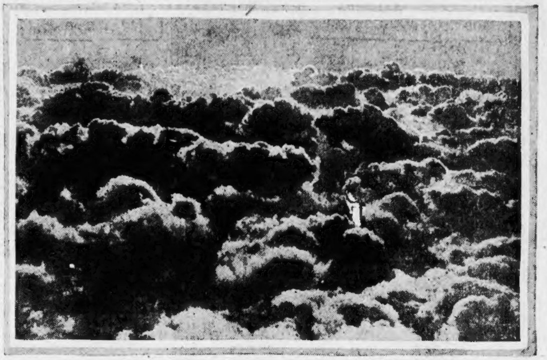
High Among the Clouds

Wonderful Scenes of Beauty Reward the Venturesome Balloonist



A photograph taken at an elevation of 1,000 feet

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

PEOPLE who climb lofty mountains often get wonderful views of cloudland, but the best views of that kind are obtained from balloons. An example of the spectacle that is sometimes spread beneath the eyes of an aeronaut is shown in the accompanying photograph. The sense of loneliness and of being lost in space almost overwhelms the mind when the sight of the solid world below is completely cut off by an ocean of boiling clouds.

Sometimes the upper surface of a vast curtain of clouds which entirely conceals the earth is cast up into immense mountainous masses, as if it were a world of snow. I have seen a photograph of such a scene made from a balloon, which showed a huge white round-topped mass, in form not unlike the mighty dome of Chimborazo, rising from an almost level plain of clouds, which stretched thousands of feet below the balloon and extended to the horizon on all sides.

The resemblance to a real landscape, variegated with hills and mountains and covered with eternal snow, is heightened when a thunderstorm happens to be raging in the clouds beneath the aeronaut's feet. The lightning flashes vividly from peak to peak, and across the chasms of air the thunder cracks sharply in the startled ears.

Occasionally a descent has to be made through such a curtain of cloud, and it is not without its special danger, both from electric discharges and from the effects of the moisture, and of the sudden cooling, on the buoyancy of the balloon.

When the lower world is cut off by clouds the aeronaut, of course, can only estimate his position, and having no landmarks to go by, and no certain means of measuring his speed, or the direction of his flight, he is in the truest sense lost in the midst of the sky. At night he may get his general direction from the stars, but any precise observation is impossible.

The effect of swiftly dropping through the lower side of a layer of clouds, and seeing the earth beneath apparently in the act of bounding up to meet the descending balloon, is described by those who have experienced it as startling in the highest degree.

The balloonist has opportunities for cloud study of the most excellent kind. He sees them from a new point of view, and can observe many peculiarities not visible from the ground. The great differences in the elevations of clouds of various kinds are brought clearly to his attention.

An ordinary stratus cloud, covering the whole heavens as seen from a fixed point on the earth, has usually an elevation of less than half a mile, or say from 2,000 to 2,500 feet. The balloon on rising rapidly enters the lower surface of the cloud, and in a few minutes emerges from the upper surface into a [illegible] world of sunshine. Yet above may appear another, less compact, layer of strato-cumulus, like a roof, with cloudy rafters, and this may or may not be reached, according to the elevation which the balloonist undertakes to attain.

There may be a space of air a mile or more in thickness between the lower clouds and the upper ones. If the balloon ascends through the second roof, a third may come into view above, composed of alto-stratus, which ordinarily floats at an elevation of three and a half miles. Even this may be penetrated by a very bold adventurer in the sky, and then it would be possible for a fourth cloud-roof to be seen above, at an elevation from six to ten miles from the earth, consisting of the lightest and most beautiful of all clouds, the cirri.

These, disposed in flaky masses, or long, curling filaments, often gleam with the colors of a surface of mother-of-pearl. But only unmanned balloons can rise to the region where the highest cirri are formed.

Of course, the succession of clouds just described would not be likely to be encountered on any particular balloon trip, and yet it might be. But if only two or three layers of colud are penetrated the extraordinary sensation of rising through an aerial world divided into successive stories is experienced.

The highest clouds do not form vast, unbroken layers like some of those nearer the earth. There is no other kind of cloud so imposing as the cumulo-nimbus.

It piles itself up in vast mountain-like masses, with snowy cliffs, precipices and projecting bluffs and brows, and seems, when viewed from the ground, gleaming in the sunshine, to penetrate the highest heavens. Its majestic peaks do, sometimes, [illegible] a height of from sixt to eight miles, but its bases can be reached by a balloon, though the balloonist would avoid its neighborhood, for it is the typical thunder-cloud.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

REPLACE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a gentleman eight years my senior for thet past six months, and during that time he has taken me to all sorts of amusements and has given me beautiful gifts both at Christmas time and New Year's. He is in my company about three times a week, and stays until twelve or after each time, much to the anger of my folks. What I wish to ask you is this. He says no matter how much he would ever like me he never would marry me, as our religious views are different, but he enjoys taking me around. Now don't you think it foolish of me to waste my time on him, when there can be nothing but friendship come out of his courting? I have several other friends who also admire me, and I have refused their invitations, as this young man is so attentive. I might add also that he very often speaks of a young lady of his acquaintance of whom he says, "NO girl shall ever take her place," although he spends all his money and time on me. He is not married. I await with interest your valued reply. I might add I am very fond of him, and he says he is of me. ANXIOUS.

WITHOUT going into the delicate question of differing religious views, it seems to me that your admirer (?) protests too much about that other girl, whose place no one can take. Why do you let him monopolize your time? If I were in your place I should accept such invitations from other young men as I saw fit. If this man does not like it, let him place his attentions elsewhere. There seems to be no prospect of anything but a pleasant acquaintanceship in the situation you describe. He may say he is fond of you, but what he really means, it seems to me, is that he finds your company entertaining. Do you not know other men just as agreeable, worthy and eligible as he, who might be more promising suitors? By the way—you take pains to mention that this man "is not married." I should hope not, under the circumstances.

FAIR PLAY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going about with a young man for three months and he has always been upright and truthful with me. I introduced him to a friend and he seemed indifferent to her.

She told me that he had asked to call and had acted just the opposite to the way he had treated her when I was around. He made a date with her for an evening when he was to have seen me. As a matter of fact, he did keep the engagement with me, but it was a party and she was there also.

Now what I want to know is this: Ought I to ask my friend whether what this girl told me is true, or shall I go on trusting him when he might really not be worthy of such honest devotion? PERPLEXED.

GIVE this young man a chance to defend himself. No one should be condemned unheard.

YOU CAN SAVE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty and married five months. I dearly love my husband and we have been sweethearts for many years. As my husband's position is one that puts him in the company more or less of young girls, he has told me that a certain girl about my own age, perhaps younger, has shown signs of falling in love with him. Now this girl knows he is married and has seen me, therefore knows who I am, but she disregards me altogether. I know who she is and where she lives.

I am afraid trouble may come if this girl still forces her attentions on my husband. HEARTBROKEN.

THE fact that your husband has told you of this affair shows that he is honest—if weak. Stand by him and don't let jealousy or suspicion make you impel him toward a characterless love-thief. You must be an understanding, patient, good-tempered pal now—as well as a loving wife. Forget personal vanity and pettiness and make an honest effort to save your love.

Mutual Plan Reported for Rock Island; Agreement Said to Have Been Concluded by Amster and Hayden People, Says Boersianer

RAILS SHOWED PRONOUNCED ADVANCE IN N STOCK MARKET

By BOERSIANER.

The levelling influences at the opening of the market were several. Overnight national prestige was again made ridiculous by a few wretched Mexicans—and nothing is more gnawing than ridicule.

To parry this mortifying thrust at his ambition Mr. Wilson prepared a reply to Germany which accepts the new marine orders as satisfactory but rejects any contingency as to Great Britain.

Pursuantly market opportunists addressed themselves to the industrial section, which they made "Spotty," but they were countered by a spirited rise in the rails.

Over Sunday orders in those were of a large total. Against a slight decline in the industrials were pronounced advances in the rails—advances two to one of the declines. All in all, the market ended assuringly even for the industrials, which ceased to be harried after the demonstration in the railway list.

* * *

Rock Island securities were decidedly stronger, and with reason. A reliable report has it that an agreement has been concluded between the Amster and Hayden committees. These committees were hostile from the outset. They competed for proxies. The Hayden people opposed the election of Amster directors.

The mutual plan of action has been adopted which may be announced in a few days. Now that the Amster and Hayden interests are joined the purpose of the Peabody people should be difficult of realization.

* * *

Other acceptable reports had to do with Allis-Chalmers and with American Linseed. The beginning of the cancellation of back dividends on Allis-Chalmers, by the payment of "Extras," was deferred recently because of the uncertainty of the labor situation. Earnings and surplus warrant an extra and the directorate had declared it, but for the then labor outlook.

In Linseed the steady accumulation by insiders is marked from time to time by monetary operations that break quotations sharply on the sale of a small amount of stock, particularly the preferred, of which the amount on the open market is limited.

Whoever is acting for the Rockefellers lacks invention. The jockeying is too hackneyed and obvious and should not impose upon minority stockholders.

Several large blocks of railway stocks, including Erie Common, were said to have been taken over privately by bankers acting for European clients.

* * *

These extra Bourse transactions are likely to continue until Europe shall have been quite exhausted of American securities. The indications now are that the trade balance for the 1915-1916 year will exceed $4,000,000,000, and Europe may take it well for granted that payment will be taken in "Yankees."

It is true that the stock of American securities in Europe is being depleted; nevertheless, there is still a fair volume abroad.

Moreover when the stock of American securities shall have been absorbed, Europeans hope that American bankers and investors will be prepared to take payment in part at any rate in other securities of one kind or another for the ever-mounting exports.

London assures that immediately the war is over the work at redeeming Europe's floating debt will begin immediately.

The relatively low prices of the rails and standard industrials are purely the result of European liquidation in a single year. When these conditions shall have been succeeded by the reverse operation — the repurchase of tens of millions of securities in the course of the year in place of sale, a corresponding rise in the prices should be in order.

By J. C. KERRISON.

A drive of 512 miles from Buffalo to Boston was made in a Hudson Super-Six by George B. Kimball and A. B. Henley of the Henley-Kimball Company last Sunday. They left Buffalo at 5:30 a. m. and arrived at Mr. Kimball's Winchester residence at 11 p. m.

The actual riding time on the trip was fourteen hours, and the average speed maintained thirty-seven and a half miles an hour. The only stops made were those for meals at Syracuse and Springfield. Not a single mishap marred the pleasure of the trip.

The trip was made via Rochester, Utica, Syracuse, Albany, Springfield and Boston. The roads from Buffalo to Rochester were in perfect condition and permitted a speed of from fifty-six to sixty-five miles per hour, the latter speed being the high point reached during the trip.

Mr. Kimball, who operated the car every inch of the way, said that he felt no ill effects. He said so far as gear work was concerned, the gears were never changed except for starting and might just as well have been locked throughout the trip.

James J. Joyce, former manager of the New York branch of the Houk Manufacturing Company, has been promoted to the factory in Buffalo, where he will handle sales.

George L. Sullivan, a former Boston newspaper man, has been appointed advertising manager of the Fisk Tire and Rubber Company. He will assume his new duties the first of June.

PUBLIC SERVICE

Tuesday, May 9, 1916

SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS

WE should like to ask several classes of citizens several pertinent questions.

1. TO THE CORPORATIONS AND THE SPECIAL FINANCIAL INTERESTS WHICH ARE ATTEMPTING TO DESTROY THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION BY THE BILL NOW PENDING IN THE LEGISLATURE TO REORGANIZE IT:

How can you expect the continuance of private ownership and control of the public service corporations unless you submit to independent and honest regulation?

How do you expect the public to permit you the continuance of the control of these public service corporations unless you convince the public that you are submitting to honest, independent regulation?

And how do you expect the public to believe that you ARE submitting to honest, independent regulation when you enter into a conspiracy by the use of the lobby and other nefarious influences, to destroy the regulating commission which has proved too independent for your tastes?

2. TO THE TELEPHONE COMPANY:

You know that a recent investigation of the charges and service of the Telephone Company in New York resulted in a saving to the people of New York alone of millions of dollars.

You know that an investigation cannot be indefinitely postponed in Massachusetts.

You have within a week by extraordinary effort succeeded in postponing this investigation for another year in order to give you time to destroy the present Public Service Commission and to create a new one which you can control. You THINK that you are victorious. But so did the New Haven Railroad just before the total eclipse of its old management think that it had no more worlds to conquer. Within one year after the trolley merger victory of the New Haven in the Massachusetts Legislature, its management had fallen before the very forces that you are calling to arms against you. Are you as unwise as the old New Haven management?

3. TO THE BAY STATE STREET RAILWAY COMPANY:

You are in the midst of a hearing on your demand for an increase in car fare on your railroad system. This hearing is proceeding before the very Public Service Commission whose destruction is the object of the bill now before the Ways and Means Committee. What is your game? Can you not stand the suspense? Do you think that you ALWAYS can try your cases before PACKED tribunals? Do you think that the public will submit to conditions which prevailed under the old railroad board which you owned?

4. TO THE HONEST AND THOUGHTFUL CITIZENS WHO STILL HESITATE TO APPROVE OF PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATIONS, THOUGH THIS PUBLIC OWNERSHIP HAS COME IN ALL THE OTHER PROGRESSIVE AND POWERFUL NATIONS OF THE WORLD:

Not yet ready to accept public ownership, you have adopted as its alternative the system of public regulation of the public service corporations.

Presumably if this system of public regulation fails, you will adopt public ownership.

In the meantime you wish the system of regulation to be efficient and successful.

Therefore, we call your attention to the words of the Boston Chamber of Commerce protesting against the pending bill to destroy the Public Service Commission, a scheme backed by the lobby, the Telephone Company and the special interests of State Street.

> "Regulation by the State of public service corporations has come to stay. A great body of law has already grown up upon the subject, although many of the main principles are still probably in a formative stage. The due and proper development of this body of law is of great importance to the public and to the public service corporations. There is need that it be matured in reason and moderation. The machinery for the administration of this law, except in so far as it bears upon and affects the just development of the main principles of control of public service corporations, is to a large extent a secondary matter.
> "The Public Service Commission of the State of Massachusetts—now consisting of five members, appointed one each year, giving a term of five years for each member—has been in existence since 1913. As shown by the list of matters which it has considered, the work imposed upon it has been of great importance and of wide extent.
>
> "The Commission is now considering the following important subjects:
>
> "1. Bay State Street Railway 6-cent fare case—affecting ninety cities and towns in Eastern Massachusetts and involving the question of additional revenue in increased fares amounting to $1,500,000—proposed rates suspended until September, 1916.
>
> "2. Massachusetts Northeastern Street Railway 6-cent fare case—proposed rates suspended until September, 1916.
>
> "3. Bristol & Norfolk Street Railway 6-cent fare case—proposed rates suspended.
>
> "4. Additional subway station in Cambridge.
>
> "5. New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad capitalization.
>
> "The committee has interviewed representatives of corporations that are under the control of the Commission, and has endeavored also to get the opinions of those who might represent the public interests concerned, and the best opinion seems to be that continuity and a stability are absolutely essential in the administration of the law. Neither the Commission as a consituted body nor the personnel of it can be changed without some disturbance of this desirable continuity. In other words, there should be no such disturbance without good reason.
>
> "The bill is further objectionable because the inevitable result will be that it will throw an important administrative question into party politics by making a precedent for the changing of the Commission upon the shifting of political control from one party to the other. The consequence must be the impairment of the standing of the Commission in the public confidence and, therefore, in its usefulness. The resulting lack of permanence of tenure will also tend to make the problem more and more difficult of securing men of proper standing to serve upon the Commission.
>
> "Your committee is of opinion that a five-year term for the members of the Commission is better than a three."

Do you wish to return to the old days of the Railroad Commission, consisting of just three wielders of rubber stamps, under whom the corporations ran amuck, violated all our laws, violated all the rules of sound business management, ruined hundreds of stockholders and brought loss to thousands of other stockholders and thousands of business men who had to ship and receive goods over the rail and to the millions who are intimately affected by the prosperity and good service, or the reverse, of our railroads and street railways?

5. TO THE PROGRESSIVES IN MASSACHUSETTS:

You are recognized to be the brains and character of the Republican party. You kept the Republican party out of power in Massachusetts for five years because you could no longer condone its treason to the policies and the spirit of Lincoln. You permitted it to return to power last year because it made several progressive platform promises and because Mr. McCall, its candidate for Governor, seemed to have turned his face forward in the direction of progress.

Two-thirds of the record of the present Legislature and of the Republican party, fully restored to power, has been made. You know, if you have followed the events at the State House, that so far it has been a reactionary, standpat record; that the Legislature has kept faith in nothing except the Constitutional Convention, and then only under the lash of the Governor. If the pending tax dodger's bill and the bill to destroy the Public Service Commission are passed, it will make this the worst Legislature we have had since the grand surrender of our representative body to the New Haven Railroad some eight years ago. If Republican success at the polls means this kind of government, what are you going to do about it?

6. TO THE REPUBLICANS OF MASSACHUSETTS:

You know that by the subserviency of the Republican party to the special interests of this State, you lost control of the State. You know that for four years you tried in vain to regain your old position of absolute dominance in this Commonwealth. You know that you won the election last year by SEEMING to abandon your alliance with the "interests" and turning your face in the direction of progress long enough to make the progressive voters believe that you intended permanently to pursue that course. You know that despite your fair promises and concessions, your prestige in this State and the confidence of the people in your good intentions were so impaired that, after an unprecedented effort on your part, the Democratic candidate for Governor received a larger vote for Governor than any candidate for Governor your party ever nominated before, and that you only won by a narrow margin through treachery in the Democratic ranks and through the support of a certain element in the liquor interests. You know that without the united support of the Progressives you cannot retain the control of Massachusetts another year.

Is the personal interest of the Republican members of the Legislature in favor of the corporations and special interests greater than their interest in the success of their party? Is the control by these special interests over these Republican representatives greater than the control of the Republican voers?

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Pretty Soon

THERE is a wicked little sprite
Who sings a wicked tune,
He hums it morning, noon and night—
The words are: "Pretty soon!"
And when he finds small girls and boys
With things they ought to do,
But who don't like to leave their toys,
He makes them sing it, too.

AND though it's time to seek their beds,
And put their toys away,
The tune keeps running through their heads,
So they just stay and stay.
And though they cannot help but hear
Their mother loudly call:
"It's long past time for bed, my dear,"
They will not come at all.

AND when she bundles them to bed
With words (and other things),
The nicest dreams have long since fled
Upon their shining wings.
And when at last the morning light
Is showered all about
And everything is fair and bright,
It's so hard to get out.

AND all because that wicked elf
Keeps humming all day long
(He ought to sing it to himself),
That wicked, wicked song.
But till, in Heaven above grows dim
The very brightest star,
Small boys and girls will hark to him—
For that's how children are.

The Enthusiasm of Childhood

There is no middle ground for Link Steffens. When he writes about Pittsburgh he makes you think it several shades blacker than Sodom and Gomorrah, and when he writes about Carranza he would have you believe he is little more of a saint than any saint on the calendar.

Trivial Misfortune

They are making a lot of fuss in Russia because the Czar lost his self-possession in a battle, when he might easily have lost some of his more valuable possessions.

Bound to Do Some Good

We suggest sending Mr. Daniels to Annapolis. He probably would be bilged out in his first year, but anyway, it would keep him out of the Navy Department for a while.

Badly Balanced

Certain statesmen would serve their country better if they had a little less speed and a lot more control.

Except Backwards

Mr. Bryan says he has traveled 500,000 miles in twenty years. But he never got anywhere.

President Wilson Has a Wonderful Opportunity

WITH the acceptance of Germany's reply to his note on the submarine question, the path of honorable and effective mediation between the warring powers opens before Mr. Wilson.

We are bound to believe that the President is as anxious as any other sensible and humane American to see the dreadful devastation and slaughter in Europe speedily ended.

We believe that Germany is willing to negotiate peace upon the terms of returning to the status of July, 1914.

If the frequent declarations of cabinets and chancelleries mean anything, neither France, England, Germany, Austria nor Turkey is fighting to obtain spoil or conquest.

England and France declare they are fighting to drive Germans out of France and Belgium.

Germany and Austria and Turkey declare that they are fighting to prevent invasion and to keep their territories intact.

A return to the status of 1914 would thus fulfil the open and frequent assertions of each of these great powers as to its object in keeping on with the war.

We may confidently assume that both sides have discovered the practical impossibility of either achieving a decisive victory without the victor being as hopelessly bankrupted and as irreparably weakened as the vanquished.

The only possible result of prolonging the war to a decision in Europe would be to establish combined Russia and Japan as the irresistible dictators of Europe and Asia, and that is a prospect fully as repellent to Russia's present allies as to her present enemies—perhaps even more repellent.

We have not been at all disposed to see Mr. Wilson re-elected. Yet the course which we now suggest to Mr. Wilson would, if he carried it through, almost certainly make his election sure.

We do not care the snap of a finger for any possible consideration of party politics or of party or personal feeling in the face of this horrible cataclysm which is engulfing our race.

God forbid that any such consideration should weigh even so much as one poor grain of dust in the balances in which hang the lives and the deaths of millions of our fellow-men and the happiness and the anguish of millions of our sister-women.

We speak from our heart's sincere emotion when we most earnestly urge the President to make essay of the nation's powerful influence to bring truce and peace to distressed and agonized Europe.

It is, we do most sincerely believe, a noble and wonderful opportunity to serve God and mankind and to secure for our own dear country the gratitude and the respect of the nations of the earth and long years of security and peace and happiness throughout the world.

May we not all pray that the Almighty Providence will guide the President and the Nation in this supremely decisive hour to be the messengers of peace on earth and good will to all mankind?

The Pending "Loan Shark". Bill

HOUSE BILL 2114, seeking further to regulate the making of small loans, is a wise and constructive and very much needed reform. The holes in the old "loan shark" law are large and numerous enough almost to destroy the object for which the law was passed and the office of supervisor of small loans established.

The bill in its essential points fixes three per cent. per month as a maximum charge for these small loans and absolutely prohibits charges of any sort, name or nature in addition to the three per cent. This is to prevent the common attempt to beat the devil around the bush by usury under the cover of charges for making out papers and other administrative services in the small loans business.

Once-Overs

Do you ever think of your parents when you are about to do something which you know would displease them?

Except your wife, your parents above all others should be considered when you contemplate an escapade which may result in disgrace.

The fact that you feel positive that your action will never become known does not make the offense less, nor does it afford you an excuse for overstepping the bounds of propriety or honesty.

If you have no scruples yourself, the fact that you may bring trouble and disgrace upon your parents should be enough to restrain you.

Before you enter into anything which is not just right, consider the reflection it may cast upon those who have reared and instructed you.

Most parents do their utmost to train their children in all good principles and, therefore, should not be blamed for what their headstrong, wilful offspring do, but at least a part of the stigma does rest upon the parents when the young man or the young woman goes wrong.

Honor your parents, and so prove yourself worthy of honor.
